GIRL AT PLAY IN TORONTO LOSES LIFE

Body of Little Alfreda Hillier Found on Dump Near Family Home

Exposure Believed Cause of Death; Escaped Criminal at First Blamed

Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 26.—Murder theories in the death of little Alfreda "Bunty" Hillier, whose unclad body was found in a city dump to-day, were under revision this afternoon as Chief Coroner M. M. Crawford announced the body bore no marks indicating external violance.

"Death would appear to have been due to exposure," he said, as the autopsy neared completion. "There were no gross lesions that would cause death."

The chief coroner found "no signs of violence which would indicate the child had been criminally violated." Earlier working on the assumption of murder, police had started a search for an unnamed man who escaped last summer from an Ontario institution, with several convictions against him for assaults on children.

WANDERED FROM HOME

It was understood as a result of the autopsy, medico-legal opinion was inclining to the theory the eighteen-months-old girl who wandered away from her Boothroyd Avenue home yesterday afternoon, had removed her clothes herself as she played about the dump, and had died of cold. The body, when found, lay partially under a rusted automobile radiator. It was thought possible this had fallen on her as she played, and pinned her there to die helplessly.

NEAR HOME

The dump on which the body of "Bunty"—the name by which she was known to her parents, neighbors and small companions—was found was within 300 yards of her home.

From the bricks and discarded tin cans and mingled debris of the city dump the father of Bunty was led away by police. Hero of Jutland, veteran of the mystery ship, Alfred Hillier, believing someone had killed the child, called down maledictions on the supposed slayer, then broke from the grasp of police to rush back where the body lay and pray.

Candidate Shuffle May Follow Delay Of Victoria Poll

PREPARE FOR ABSENTEE VOTE

Out of Town People in Vancouver Will Cast Ballots in Burrard

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—People from out of town wishing to cast absentee ballots in Vancouver for the candidates in their home constituencies will have to vote in Burrard, owing to cancellation of the poll in Vancouver Centre.

George Andrews, returning officer in Burrard, announced to-day special provision for the expected heavy volume of absentee ballots would be made at two polling places, the new Armories on Maple Street and Eleventh Avenue and the Odd Fellows' Hall on Main Street at Sixth Avenue.

Experience has shown there are usually about 2,000 people from other parts of the province staying in Vancouver on any given day. As most of them are at hotels and downtown rooming houses the burden of receiving the absentee ballots usually falls on a downtown poll.

D. Drew Pratt, returning officer for Vancouver Centre, had developed an organization for handling this vote at the Central School, but with the post-

Three Weeks More of Campaigning May Cause Some to Drop Out

Six Members Will Be Named After Rest of Province Has Voted

Possibility of a number of changes in the personnel of the original twenty-nine candidates nominated for the provincial election contest in Victoria with a probable reduction in the number, was discussed in Victoria to-day, following the announcement that polling would be delayed in Victoria and Vancouver Centre until November 27, three weeks after the rest of the province has voted.

It was forecast F. C. Elliott, who has been closely in touch with the late William J. Bowser, K.C., would be selected to take his place on the Victoria ticket.

THREE MORE WEEKS

In Victoria candidates face the prospect of three more weeks of arduous campaigning after what was already one of the most strenuous political battles in local history. After the climax had been approached candidates are now faced with the necessity of continuing the strain of speech-making and also the expense of the campaign.

Those already nominated do not have to file papers again but any others who desire to enter the race may file nomination papers on November 6. Any of those in the field may retire. Some of the candidates, already weary with the fight and not making the headway they anticipated, may drop out of the race rather than fight for three more weeks.

AFTER REST OF B.C. HAS VOTED

In any event Victoria and Vancouver Centre with four seats at stake in the former constituency and two in the latter may find themselves centres of a whirlwind of political activity after the rest of the province has voted.

In Victoria and Vancouver Centre nominations will be open four days after the rest of the province has voted. Should some candidates find their party hopelessly defeated they may decide against continuing their campaign. If the results throughout the rest of the province should be close the two constituencies where the delayed voting takes place may be voting to definitely decide the color of the next administration.

NON-PARTIZANS TO CARRY ON

Death of W. J. Bowser Will Not Interrupt Group's Plans

Nominating Conventions in Two Ridings to Select Candidates to Take His Place

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—Death of W. J. Bowser, K.C., will not interfere with plans of the Independent Non-Partizan group, excepting in Vancouver Centre and in Victoria, the constituencies in which he was a candidate, it is announced.

There will be no interruption to the campaign now being waged in all parts of British Columbia, a statement reads

"While Mr. Bowser was a valuable member of Independent Non-Partizan group, he was the first to make it clear, when the organization was formed, that he was only serving as one of many in the best interests of good government in British Columbia," the statement says.

"The question of leadership, he insisted on every platform on which he appeared, must be settled by the elected representatives of the Independent Non-Partizan group.

"Mr. Bowser was profoundly sincere in his desire to do something to help bring about ordered conditions in administration of public affairs in the province, and his only object in reentering public life was to give the benefit of his long experience as a legislator to the cause he held so dear," the statement adds.

TO WORK HARDER

"The men and women working with him in that cause are just as sincere, and his death, while greatly to be regretted, has, if anything, only inspired them to work harder for the result for which he sacrificed his strength in his last days.

"While we have lost a brilliant associate, we will carry on the fight for good government with unabated energy, firm in the conviction that the sane, safe course for British Columbia in her present crisis is to forget partizanship and elect a body of men and women who will go to Victoria pledged to serve their country before all else."

The commitee announced that nominating conventions will be held in Vancouver Centre and Victoria to select a candidate or candidates to fill the vacancy created by Mr. Bowser's death. Particulars of these meetings will be made public later.

In the meantime the campaign organization in Vancouver Centre will combine with those in Point Grey and Vancouver East to help elect the Indepent Non-Partizan candidates in those ridings.

All campaign meetings of the Non-Partizan group to-night and Friday have been cancelled in respect to Mr Bowser's memory.

U.S. GOLD UP STILL HIGHER

Government Pays $31.54 an Ounce For Newly Mined Precious Metal

Rate Given Is Forty-eight Cents Higher Than Present London Figure

Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 26.—The United States government sought to give increased impetus to its price boosting programme to-day by increasing the price it will pay for newly mined gold by eighteen cents an ounce over yesterday, the figure set being $31.54.

It was asserted at the White House later the increase did not mean necessarily there would be a daily increase.

Indications were voiced that so long as the United States price keeps ahead of foreign market levels, a point may be reached when it will not be felt necessary to increase the quotation. Purchases of the metal will continue on a daily basis.

Yesterday, when this Roosevelt policy was inaugurated, the domestic price was fixed at $31.36 against a London figure of $31.09. At an exchange rate of $4.75 to the pound sterling to-day's quotation was $31.06.

While this was a decrease of three cents compared with yesterday, there was actually an increase in the London gold price in British currency. It jumped from 130 shillings, one pence, to 130 shillings 9½ pence. Variations in foreign exchange accounted for the decrease in the dollar value.

As yesterday, Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Henry Morgenthau Jr., representing the President, called on Acting-Secretary Dean Acheson at his office in the Treasury.

They received the latest figures from London on gold and foreign exchange quotations. Quickly arriving at their decision, they dispatched copies of a formal statement to newspapermen waiting at telephones in the press room two floors below.

Montreal, Oct. 26.—Price of bar gold in London to-day was $31.59 an ounce in terms of the Canadian dollar, based on the London price of 130s 9½d and the quotation of Sterling in Montreal at $4.83⅛. Yesterday the Canadian equivalent was $31.67.

U.S. DOLLAR IN LONDON

London, Oct. 26.—The United States dollar closed to-day at $4.75 to the pound sterling, two cents better than yesterday. After opening at $4.73½ it went to $4.75⅛ before returning to $4.75.

The French franc closed at 80.78 to the pound, also slightly better than yesterday.

STORM LEAVES MUCH DAMAGE

Eastern Provinces Take Stock of Wreckage Following Yesterday's Disturbances

Canadian Press

Montreal, Oct. 26.—Normalcy gradually returned to-day to Quebec and the Maritime Provinces after snow and rainstorms which brought death to seven lumbermen, caused millions of dollars damage and disrupted traffic, lighting systems and communications over a period of forty-eight hours.

As Quebec cleared away a record-breaking October snow fall, tempestuous rains swept over the Maritimes. In New Brunswick the swiftly-rising waters of the Big Salmon River yesterday swirled seven loggers to their deaths on the last day of the log drive, while the Digby shore of Nova Scotia was heavily damaged. Prince Edward Island reported flooded roads and fields.

The Montreal district experienced the brunt of the storm first when snow started to fall at Tuesday noon, the storm continued for nearly twenty-four hours, till 8.9 inches of snow lay on the ground. Other parts of the province felt the storm yesterday and Montreal suffered a complete power failure for an hour. Navigation was delayed, highways were blocked in the Laurentian Mountains and on the Montreal-Three Rivers and Montreal-Ottawa routes.

TRAIN DERAILED

Miles of roads and fields were flooded when two dams broke at Apohaqui, Kings County, N.B. In the same county twelve highway bridges were carried away. Twelve cars of a fast freight train from Moncton to Quebec were derailed at Mile 37, but no one was injured.

Say Pound Will Follow U.S. Dollar

Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 26.—Financial circles in Berlin regard the United States gold policy as another attempt by America to dominate the world markets.

They declare a further depreciation of the dollar would follow increased gold prices in the United States, with a subsequent aggravation of the struggle for world markets, in which Germany would be the loser.

Official circles considered how they could meet United States dumping, while exporters believed British sterling must follow the dollar, because Great Britain would try its best to keep a hold on international markets.

Employers Inform Bureau of Statistics 834,348 Men and Women on Payrolls Oct. 1 as Compared With 816,458 Sept. 1; Firms Not Reporting Believed Adding to Total

USUAL SEASONAL TREND REVERSED

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—Reflecting brighter business conditions, October 1 saw 17,890 more Canadians absorbed into industry since September 1, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports. It was the sixth consecutive month to record increased employment.

In its monthly survey of employment conditions, the Bureau of Statistics received reports from 8,240 employers of labor. These showed 834,348 men and women were on payrolls, compared with 816,458 on September 1. The increase is the largest reported at October 1 since employment records first were gathered in 1921.

The bureau estimates 134,000 persons have been added to payrolls of the reporting firms since April 1, an average of sixteen per each establishment during the six months.

"This decided improvement in business among the co-operating firms," comments the bureau, "has no doubt also been accompanied by important gains among the smaller firms in industries covered, as well as among employers in industries for which no statistics are available, so the number of workers obtaining employment in this general expansion of industrial activity must greatly exceed 134,000."

TREND REVERSED

Because industrial activity frequently has declined between September and October in the past, the bureau places additional weight on this year's increase in employment. The index of employment, based on the average for the calendar year 1926 as 100, stood at 90.4 October 1, compared with 88.5 September 1 and 86.7 October 1, 1932. On October 1, 1931, the figure was 103.9; 1930, 116.2; 1929, 125.6, and 1928, 118.8.

Indicating the upswing in industrial activity, the index of employment rose from 76 on April 1 to 90.4 on October 1, an increase of 14.4 points. Only in 1928 and 1929, out of the last twelve years, were there larger increases in the corresponding six-month period, while last year there was a decline of three points.

ARBITRATION BOARD NAMED FOR B.C.E.R.

Federal Minister of Labor Announces Establishment of Commission to Consider Wage Question; Men Choosing Member

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—A board of conciliation has been established by Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor, to deal with the dispute between the British Columbia Electric Railway Company and appproximately 1,400 of its employees in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster.

A. G. McCandless, Vancouver, has been appointed a member of the board on the recommendation of the company. A recommendation from the employees is expected shortly at the Department of Labor. Then the representatives of the employer and the employees will confer on the selection of a chairman. Failing agreement, this appointment will be made by the minister.

A three-year agreement under which the employees had been working, and which had been modified in December, 1932, by a five per cent wage decrease, expired September 30 of this year. The company proposed putting into effect a further wage reduction of ten per cent, which would make a total cut of 15 per cent from the basic rates in the agreement.

The employees rejected this further decrease, and the company applied for a board of conciliation and investigation, now being constituted.

MILK POOL IN FARM STRIKE

Wisconsin Dairymen Join Move in U.S.; New Mexico Farmers to Strike

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 26.—The National Farmers' Holiday Association strike in the United States was apparently given impetus in Wisconsin to-day with the decision of the Wisconsin Co-operative Milk Pool to participate, beginning next Tuesday, and in New Mexico, where the State Holiday Association was ordered to join.

A. N. Young, president of the Wisconsin Farmers' Union, said his group would follow the milk pool's lead.

Violence flared in northern Wisconsin. Pickets invaded several cheese factories and creameries, dumping milk and pouring kerosene and ashes in milk vats and churns.

Near Omaha, Neb., it was a different story. Five hundred Iowa farmers escorted trucks into Nebraska. There was little activity in Iowa, where Milo Reno, strike leader, pleaded against violence.

ARMS COMMITTEE GIVEN BIG TASK

Steering Group at Geneva Asked to Reconcile Many Views Before Conference Session December 4

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Geneva, Oct. 26.—The work of disarmament will go on, with no vain regrets over Germany's departure from the World Disarmament Conference. After approving the plan of work recommended by the steering committee, the general conference arose this afternoon until December 4. In the interval the steering committee will go to work.

The task of the steering committee in the interval will be to endeavor to reconcile the many divergent views in preparation of a draft disarmament convention based on the British plan accepted last March as a basis of discussion. There will be conversations and there will be negotiations. But all the bureau's decisions will be subject to approval by the general conference.

It is hoped the steering committee can produce an up-to-date draft which can be given second reading when the conference resumes.

Discussion in the general commission—the World Conference proper—this afternoon turned entirely on procedure. There was no question about the determination to go ahead. Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, chairman, declared failure would be a confession the governments represented at the conference were not prepared to discharge their obligations.

Moral and political consequences of failure would be too great for the future of the League of Nations and the cause of world peace. "That is the spirit in which we must address ourselves to practical details and to what I believe is the final stage of our work," the chairman added.

"It is quite clear," said Captain Anthony Eden, British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, "withdrawal of the German delegation from the conference cannot be without its effect on the course of our work. I think it must cause some dislocation. But it is the view of His Majesty's government this event, however sincerely we may deplore it, must not be allowed to stop our work for disarmament. On the contrary, we feel it must go on.

"Moreover, I think it would be a mistake to spend time over investigation of past events. It is the future that must concern us."

SPANISH OPINION

Senor Madariaga of Spain warmly supported the British spokesman, declaring the future of Europe and the world was linked with the League. But, while regretting the absentees (which include Japan), "it is the duty of those who remain to see what is done will not prejudice those not present at its councils."

Immediately the general commission rose, the steering committee began to plan its work.

"Undersea Warship" Comes From Regina

Regina, Oct. 26.—An "undersea warship," capable of sinking a ship in twenty minutes and staying under water for a week, is the invention claimed by Robert Stepp, twenty-four-year-old unemployed Regina citizen. BANK CLEARINGS AGAIN INCREASE

A gain of $163,498 or nearly 15 per cent over the 1932 figures was made in bank clearings in Victoria this week, according to a statement released to-day by T. H. Polling Day Here On November 27

Returning Officer Announces New Election Date in Two Ridings

Delay Expected to Have Decided Affect Upon Result of Voting Here

Polling day for Victoria in the provincial election will be Monday, November 27. Notices countermanding the November 2 poll will be posted immediately, and nominations will again be called for November 6. Three weeks elapse after this date until the poll is taken.

Vancouver Centre Riding is affected similarly by the death of W. J. Bowser, K.C., which creates a situation said to be unprecedented in British Columbia election history.

The remainder of the province will proceed with the general election as called on November 2, so that the resolution that day will be only a partial verdict for the province as a whole.

An official statement on the procedure required following Mr. Bowser's death was issued by F. Walker, deputy provincial secretary. It also provides that absentee voting in Victoria for constituencies throughout the province is cancelled as far as the two ridings were concerned. Those who are in Victoria on November 2 and wish to vote for other provincial ridings must do so in either Saanich or Esquimalt.

BRITISH TRAIN VISITS SEATTLE

Associated Press

Seattle, Oct. 26.—The Royal Scot, famous train of the 401-mile run between London and Glasgow and Edinburgh, arrived here to-day from Portland. It will leave for Vancouver, B.C., at 6 this evening. The train was brought to the United States for exhibition at the Chicago Fair and will end an 8,000-mile tour in Montreal November 12.

Thousands of Seattleites visited the train, but, accustomed to the huge locomotives which pull trains through the Cascade Mountains, found the British locomotive rather small.

BRITISH LABOR CANDIDATE WINS

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 26.—Labor yesterday gained a seat in the House of Commons when J. C. Wilmot was returned by a majority of 4,840 votes over W. J. Waldron, his Conservative rival in the East Fulham by-election.

The vote was: Wilmot, 17,790; Waldron, 12,950.

Result of the polling brought an end to a long Conservative tenure of the seat. In the last general election Sir Kenyon Vaughan-Morgan had a majority of 14,521 over Sir J. Maynard, the Labor contestant. Sir Kenyon died recently.

If M. Sarraut succeeds in listing Bonnevay and Pietri, who belong to the left Republicans, and in keeping peace in his political family, political observers believe he would have a strong majority.

GOLD PROGRAMME

A firm stand for gold against inflation and devalorization forms the cardinal point in the programme drawn up by M. Sarraut.

He definitely adhered to the Radical-Socialist wing and told the party at a meeting he refused to go to the right and his and M. Daladier's party would remain a bulwark.

Besides a continued stand for the present gold franc, M. Sarraut said his programme provided for a reduction in taxes and freight rates to encourage business and the same policy toward the League of Nations and foreign affairs as that maintained by M. Daladier.

WAR DEBT QUESTION

M. Sarraut as a senator never was required to vote on the war debts, but at the time of the downfall of the Herriot cabinet friends said he would have voted for payment.

His policy on debts, however, is unknown, as the circumstances have changed and Parliament has shown no disposition to pay or even to negotiate until the British have settled.

It was said M. Sarraut intended to present his tentative cabinet list to President Lebrun late this afternoon. Hence he delayed his visit to the Elysee Palace for a final consultation.

POLLING DAY HERE ON NOVEMBER 27

The unusual situation created by the delay in the poll here and in Vancouver is expected to have an enormous effect upon the contests in the two ridings, which, between them, control six out of the forty-seven seats in the House, more than one-eighth of the entire Legislature.

The results of the general provincial balloting will be known before the new nomination day here, so that it is possible the electors will find several changes in the candidature list before they go to the polls. Under the Elections Act, all those candidates who are now nominated will stand, unless they wish to withdraw of their own account. Any others who wish are entitled to run if they file papers.

Washington, Oct. 26.—President Roosevelt to-day issued an executive order authorizing purchase of newly mined gold by the United States Reconstruction Finance Corporation in accordance with his plan for a managed currency through control of domestic gold prices.

The new order also revoked that part of the President's order of August 29 providing for sale of newly mined gold under the system abandoned yesterday with inauguration of purchases by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

SHOT FROM CAR RESULTS IN FINE

Although the bird shot was a decoy placed by game wardens in a field off Blenkinsop Road, Peter Mah, Chinese, was fined $20 and $2 costs in the Provincial Police Court yesterday afternoon when it was proved a shot had been fired from his motor vehicle at a pheasant.

J. B. Clearihue, who defended, objected to the use of a decoy as a temptation to persons to break the law. He argued a technical point on the laying of the information under the Game Act, but the magistrate upheld the prosecution which proved the shot had come from the defendant's car.

Man Leaves Weapons; Flees

London Police Doubt Indian Attempted to Kill Viscount Ratendone

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 26.—After further investigation, police to-day were inclined to reject the belief an attempt on the life of Viscount Ratendone was indicated in a mysterious incident on the roof of his Victoria Square home, when an Indian with a long curved knife was frightened away. Viscount Ratendone is the only surviving son of the Earl of Willingdon, Viceroy of India and former Governor-General of Canada. He is scheduled to start for India next Monday.

Nevertheless, many residents of Victoria Square remained convinced the mysterious dark-colored man went to the house with the intention of attempting to murder the Viceroy's son. Despite the most vigorous search by Scotland Yard detectives no trace of him has been found, but evidences of his visit are the eighteen-inch curved knife, picked up from the Ratendone roof outside the bathroom—a vicious-looking, bone-handled weapon—and a long iron file, dropped when the Indian fled.

DISCOVERED BY NOVELIST

Miss Dorothy Plattau, novelist, who from her adjoining home discovered the presence of the intruder, said she was struck with astonishment at sight of the colored man crouching outside the Ratendone bathroom with the weapons in his hands.

When she asked him what he was doing there, Miss Plattau said, he hissed in guttural tones:

"Keep quiet or I'll shoot."

She hurled a flowerpot and hit the Indian on the chest. He retaliated by throwing a brick and then a piece of lead tubing, which narowly missed her. After shouting for the police, she ran back from her roof into the house. The intruder disappeared.

Viscount Ratendone was not at home when the incident occurred.

ATTACHMENT WRIT SOUGHT

Enid-Julie Mines Asks Court For Order Against Companies Registrar

Registrar's Counsel Says Case Will Go to Supreme Court of Canada

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—A writ of attachment was sought from Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson in the British Columbia Supreme Court here to-day against H. G. Garrett, Registrar of Companies, Victoria, for the latter's alleged failure to obey an order directing him to issue a certificate to Enid-Julie Mines Ltd., Vancouver, entitling the firm to commence business.

The application was made by L. G. McPhillips, K.C., counsel for the company.

The judge reserved his decision.

Appearing for the Registrar, E. A. Lucas announced a judgment of Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald ordering the registrar to issue the certificate, which decision was upheld by the Court of Appeal, was being appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada. Mr. Lucas further stated the certificate in question had been lodged in court by the registrar as a condition to obtaining a stay of Mr. Justice McDonald's judgment, so as to have the case heard by the British Columbia Court of Appeal.

The Enid-Julie Mines Ltd. took the position that the stay had gone, Mr. Justice McDonald's judgment was effective, and the registrar must deliver the certificate and the firm was not concerned whether it was in court or not. For his failure to do this, the registrar, it was contended, was in contempt.

Australian M.P.'s Raise Indemnity

Canadian Press

Canberra, Australia, Oct 26.—In the face of protests from all over Australia, both Houses of Parliament yesterday approved a bill increasing the indemnity of members of the House of Representatives from $3,750 to $4,125.

It was especially pointed out the increase comes at a time when the basic wage rate in New South Wales has dropped by about fifty cents a week. The bill was defended by the government, however, on the ground members were deserving of some consideration in view of the heavy cuts made in their yearly salaries—formerly $5,000.

Aid For Needy Settlers Debated

Canadian Press

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 26.—Debate on assistance for destitute British settlers was adjourned in the Victoria State Legislature yesterday after second reading of the bill to settle their grievances had been moved.

Attorney-General R. G. Menzies said it was expected 200 of the 300 settlers involved would remain on the blocks of land granted them. The compensation involved in cash grants would amount to about $2,000,000, he estimated, and Victoria was offering to submit the matter to arbitration as to whether the Commonwealth Government ought to provide some portion, or all, of that amount.

PEARSON GIVEN GOOD HEARING

Liberal Candidate Well Received in Socialist Stronghold at Northfield

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, Oct. 26.—George S. Pearson held an enthusiastic meeting at Northfield and East Wellington last night. He branded as lies the charges of Dr. R. B. Dier, Independent, who made statements that Mr. Pearson was a plugged in candidate and company man. Such men, he said, are not fit to enter public life. Mr. Pearson made fitting reference to the late Mr. Bowser. At Northfield, which is noted as a Socialist stronghold, Mr. Pearson held the best meeting of his campaign, his audience listening with rapt attention as he propounded the Liberal Party's economic council plan and the problems confronting the electors. The speaker answered questions for an hour and received a splendid ovation from an audience that had intended to devote the evening to heckling. Replying to one query regarding a statement that Mr. Pearson had promised five men jobs as road foremen for their votes, the speaker said, "If there are any men voting for me with the idea of patronage then the sooner they get into some other party the better I will like them." Mr. Pearson addressed large audience at East Wellington schoolhouse and was warmly received. The lucid and intelligent manner in which he enunciated the Liberal Party's economic council plan and other planks pertaining to the welfare of workers created a big impression on the audience and gained him fresh support.

MAY NOT RESUME SETTLEMENT PLAN

Canadian Press

Calgary, Oct 26.—Alberta government officials have expressed doubt as to whether the farm settlement scheme for families on city relief will be resumed this year, according to City Commissioner T. B. Riley.

No particulars had been advanced in explanation of the possible policy, he said, but the city had been refused the privilege of recommending one or two families be sent out to complete the original quota of 100 families. The city entered the scheme on a three-way basis with the Federal and Alberta governments.

APPEAL AGAINST SENTENCE FAILS

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—John Larson's appeal from a four-year sentence was dismissed by the British Columbia Court of Appeal yesterday. Chief Justice Macdonald observed the sentence was a heavy one, but the majority of the court thought it should not be disturbed, and he would not dissent from that view.

Mr. Justice McPhillips suggested to Larson that he engage counsel for an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. The chief justice followed this with a suggestion he appeal to the Governor-General-in-Council.

Japan Watches U.S.-Soviet Talks

Montreal, Oct. 26.—Recognition of the Soviet government by the United States would be a serious matter to Japan, according to Toshio Hiratori, newly-appointed Japanese ambassador to Sweden, who is in Montreal on his way to Sweden to take up his new post.

Should the United States advance money to Soviet Russia, the new ambassador stated, it would help consolidate Russia's economic affairs and also help Communist propaganda work in the Far East.

Moscow already fostered development of Communism in China and defeat of Communism in China was one of the essentials of continued Japanese prosperity, stated the diplomat.

DOCTORS FAVOR NEW GERMAN LAW

Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 26.—The New Nazi law providing for sterilization of mental defectives and other undesirables has met with favor in one scientific quarter. Specialists, at a meeting of the German Gynecological Society, described the measure as eugenically recommendable.

A broadening of the surgeon's responsibility to include the weal of the nation instead of merely the good of his patient was seen by Professor Eugene Fischer, anthropologist and director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute.

In the course of discussion, the point was raised that the Roman Catholic Church rejects sterilization on ethical grounds. The issue was described as touching the borderline between the realms of medicine and moral theology.

The law will become effective January 1, 1934.

EXPORT CONTROL BY JAPANESE

Government May Cause Price Increase For Some Goods Sent to U.S.

By PERCY WHITEING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Tokio, Oct. 26.—The Japanese Ministry of Commerce and Industry, it is understood, is contemplating stricter control over exports to the United States, both as to price and quantity, so as to co-operate with the American government in its commodity price-raising drive.

Opinion in official circles here is that sale in the United States of too cheap Japanese merchandise might hamper to a certain extent President Roosevelt's NRA programme. The Japanese government is aware some complaints have been raised in connection with the low prices of Japanese electric light bulbs, canvas and rubber shoes and other goods.

The government is also appreciative of indications there has been no wholesale agitation against Japanese goods.

FOREIGN TRADE FIGURES

Meanwhile figures made public by the Ministry of Finance show Japan's visible foreign trade practically balances. Exports for the first nine months of 1933 were valued at 1,551,000,000 yen (currently about $449,790,000) and imports at 1,620,000,000 yen (about $469,800,000), leaving an adverse balance of 69,000,000 yen or $20,010,000. The adverse balance for the corresponding period of 1932 was 114,000,000 yen ($33,020,000).

Figures for September last showed a favorable balance of 46,000,000 yen ($12,940,000). Exports were 181,713,000 yen ($52,696,620) and imports 135,713,000 yen or $39,756,620.

Canadian Press

"If the world wants to see us anywhere it must recognize our equality. If it doesn't we will completely draw back," Hitler said.

He spoke to an audience of 100,000 people assembled in the mammoth Exhibition Hall here and gathered in the streets before it. Amplifiers carried his voice to the throngs outside.

"In the future we will never again let our honor be soiled," said the German leader. "Courageously and joyously one must fight for one's rights.

One needs only courage heroically to do the unavoidable. I have never capitulated and never will as long as I live."

Pleading for votes in the November election, he said: "The world which misunderstands our work and our desire for peace and goodwill and reconciliation must see we Nazis are only the mouthpiece of the German nation."

LONDON EDITOR JOINS MOVIES

Beverley Baxter of the Daily Express, Canadian-born, Throws in Lot With Films

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 26.—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express to-day announced resignation of A. Beverley Baxter, its Canadian managing editor, who will join the British Gaumont Film Corporation.

Mr. Baxter's spectacularly successful career with The Daily and Sunday Express newspapers dates from 1920, shortly after he terminated his services with the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

To-day Mr. Baxter declared his belief the British film was on the verge of a great adventure.

"Its future development is going to prove a fascinating labor," he said.

His position was not made known.

Mr. Baxter was born in Toronto forty-two years ago and he served with a Toronto piano company up to the outbreak of war. He was a lieutenant with the Canadian Engineers in 1915 to 1919.

He became managing editor of The Daily Express four years after he had joined it.

His wife is the former Edith Letson of Vancouver.

BY-ELECTION IN SCOTLAND SOON

Canadian Press

Kilmarnock, Scotland, Oct. 26.—Nominations to-day for the Kilmarnock by-election brought forth a four-cornered fight in one of the most interesting of the six by-elections being decided in a bunch.

(In the first of the series yesterday Labor won East Fulham, a Conservative seat for a number of years).

Candidates in the Kilmarnock fight are Kenneth Lindsay, who farmed in the Peace River district some years ago, the National Government candidate; Rev. James Barr, Labor; John Pollock, Independent Labor, and Sir Alexander MacEwen, Scottish Nationalist.

The importance attaching to the East Kilmarnock result arises from the fact it was the only division in Scotland to return a National Labor candidate to the Commons in 1931—Craigie Aitchison, whose appointment to the bench caused the by-eletcion.

In the last general election Kilmarnock gave Mr. Aitchison a majority of 7,036 in a straight fight with labor.

WHEAT BOUGHT FOR U.S. NEEDY

Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 26. — The federal surplus relief corporation up to yesterday had purchased 6,800,500 bushels of wheat, of which 700,500 bushels were cash wheat.

Announcement of the purchase of wheat by the relief administration was made after Harry L. Hopkins, administrator, had asked for bids on 15,000,000 pounds of canned beef to be distributed to the needy.

Purchase of wheat, the administration said, included 5,000,000 bushels of December futures and 1,100,000 bushels of May futures.

BISHOP GOES TO KOOTENAY

Rt. Rev. W. Adams, Head of Anglican Cariboo Diocese, Elected at Nelson

Canadian Press

Nelson, B.C., Oct. 26.—Rt. Rev. Walter Adams, D.D., Bishop of Cariboo, was elected Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Kootenay early to-day. Nine ballots were required to decide his selection from among eight candidates. He succeeds Rt. Rev. A. J. Doull, who resigned to take up work in England.

The other candidates were Ven. F. H. Graham, Archdeacon of Kootenay, Nelson; Very Rev. H. R. Ragg, Dean of Calgary; Rev. H. C. B. Gibson, rector of Vernon, B.C.; Canon W. H. Davison, rector of St. John the Evangelist Church, Montreal; former Canon G. R. Gretton, Kent, England; Rev. F. V. Harrison, rector of Cranbrook, B.C., and Ven. W. P. Robertson, Archdeacon of Hamilton, Ont.

HOW BALLOTS WENT

Early ballots did not give anything approaching a majority to any candidate. On the fifth the lay delegates gave Dean Ragg a majority and continued it on the sixth, while the clergy gave Bishop Adams a majority on the sixth. On the seventh the lay delegates started to support Archdeacon Graham. The clergy, however, continued to give Bishop Adams a majority, and the deadlock was broken on the ninth voting, both clergy and laity supporting him.

The Bishop-elect of Kootenay had his first experience in western Canada as a rector in the Qu-Appelle district, Saskatchewan. He then returned to England to take a charge, coming to Canada again when elected Bishop of Cariboo.

The special synod was held in St. Saviour's Memorial Hall with Archdeacon Thomas Greene of Kelowna, B.C., administrator of the diocese, presiding.

NEW HEATING FOR VANCOUVER

Central Plant Proposal May Be Voted on By People December 13

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—Possibility of a central heating plant in Vancouver, a scheme before civic authorities intermittently during the last decade, has been revived, H. A. Flood of Tacoma having applied to the city for a franchise to operate such a plant.

In conference with City Solicitor J. B. Williams, Mr. Flood, who operated plants in Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane, yesterday expressed his desire to start construction of a plant as soon as possible.

As consent of Vancouver ratepayers by a three-fifths vote would be required before the franchise is granted, Mr. Flood desires a by-law be presented to voters at the civic election, December 1.

Mr. Flood presented his request for a twenty-year exclusive franchise on much the same terms as contained in the now-defunct franchise which was held by the late John Hanbury and his associates. Although definite estimates have not been prepared, it is reported the initial unit might involve an investment of almost $500,000.

It is reported at the City Hall the applicant would be prepared to commence work on a first unit of the proposed heating plant immediately, should the franchise be granted.

FORMER TERMS

Under the former franchise the holder was required to expend, within fifteen months after final passage of the by-law, $25,000 for a site, plant and half-a-mile of pipes. In that period the plant had to be in operation. Within forty-eight months after passage of the by-law, the former agreement provided, the plant must have two miles of mains in use.

The old agreement also provided the city should have the right to purchase the plant at the expiration of twenty years.

It was Mr. Flood who introduced the central heating plant idea to Vancouver in 1922, when he applied for a franchise. Eventually, however, this privilege was granted to the late Mr. Hanbury and his associates after the ratepayers had approved the franchise proposal. The matter, however, remained dormant until 1928, with third reading of the by-law being withheld. In that year final reading was given to the measure, but eventually the whole scheme expired, as nothing was done toward construction of a plant within the period specified in the agreement.

HULL MAY NOT MEET LITVINOFF

Washington, Oct. 26.—With even the highest officials joining in the guessing, there appeared a strong question here to-day whether Secretary Hull would be able to shake hands with the holder of his corresponding office in the Soviet Union, Maxim Litvinoff, Commissar for Foreign Affairs.

The consensus appeared to lean rather strongly toward the view that Mr. Hull would have embarked on his goodwill tour to South America before the arrival of Mr. Litvinoff to discuss recognition with President Roosevelt.

Subject always to last-minute alterations, the best-informed opinion was that Mr. Hull would sail from New York at noon, November 4, and that Mr. Litvinoff would not land "until around the sixth."

Department of Pensions, Provincial and City Relief Orders Gladly Accepted at All PIGGLY WIGGLY Stores.

To men who don't land the order:

How's your breath today?

If offensive, it is a mark against you and your proposition

When there isn't much to choose between two propositions, it's the fellow with the personality, the agreeable manner, that lands the order. It happens a thousand times a day in business.

So what?

See that there is nothing about you that grates on the nerves of the man in the buyer's seat. And above all, take care that your breath is beyond suspicion. A case of halitosis (bad breath) often puts the buyer off of a salesman as well as his proposition. Some companies go so far as to insist that their men take daily precautions against offending this way.

No one is immune

Don't assume that you never have halitosis. That is a mistake. Few escape this trouble. Ninety per cent of cases are caused by the fermentation of tiny food particles that even careful tooth brushing has failed to remove. And the insidious thing about halitosis is that the victim never knows when he has it. The one way to make sure that your breath will not offend is to use Listerine. Simply rinse the mouth with it every morning and night, and if you wish to be particularly careful, immediately before social and business engagements.

Listerine's effect is immediate

Listerine instantly halts fermentation, the principal cause of mouth odors, and then gets rid of the odors. Immediately your mouth feels clean, fresh, and wholesome. What is more, it is clean, fresh, and wholesome. Do not expect lasting deodorant effect from ordinary mouth washes. Actual tests have shown that they fail to hide in 12 hours, odors that yield to Listerine instantly. Lambert Pharmacal Company, Toronto, Ont.

MR. W. J. BOWSER, K.C.

If Mr. W. J. Bowser could have prescribed the circumstances in which his career would end, he probably would have included prominently in them a political campaign in which he would play an active conspicuous part. Even public office held less attraction for him than a vigorous contest on the hustings, while complete retirement from the political arena was a severe tax upon his endurance. Hence, while the time of his passing was determined by an authority which transcends all human prescription, many of the conditions which marked it undoubtedly were in accord with his own inclinations.

Mr. Bowser could not have had any illusions regarding his physical limitations when he entered his last campaign; he must have realized that time had taken a heavy toll from a reservoir of strength which for many years had been only half full, but his active mind could not reconcile itself to the prospect of what he regarded as stagnation. As between wearing out and rusting out he preferred the first. Unlike many other people he could not have borne the second without constant misery. Beyond these temperamental considerations was the desire to return to public life to vindicate his record, to justify the leadership which once was his, and to wind up his political career with some signal indication of his restoration to public confidence.

Mr. Bowser came from New Brunswick, which has contributed not a few able leaders to the public life of the province, and much of its political vigor. After several preliminary and unsuccessful ventures in the federal and provincial field he eventually entered the Legislature of the province, in 1903, in the first election held on party lines in British Columbia. He became Attorney-General in the McBride government four years later, and occupied that post for nine years, in the final year being also the leader of the government. He proved to be an able administrator and one of the dominant members of the ministry, while in the House he established a reputation as a keen, vigorous debater, and a hard fighter, who neither gave nor sought quarter. For many years his most consistent opponent was John Oliver, and the controversies between them became one of the legends of the Legislature. A pathetic sequel of this feud was a letter of goodwill sent by Mr. Oliver to Mr. Bowser as the old tribune lay on his deathbed, a communication which the latter in full appreciation of the spirit in which it was written regarded as one of his most cherished possessions.

Mr. Bowser lost the general election of 1916, and led his party in opposition in the House until the election of 1924 in which his opponents were elected, while he lost his own seat. Two years later the leadership of the party was transferred to Dr. Tolmie, and Mr. Bowser became a private citizen after nearly two decades in active public life. But while he no longer was an actor in the political drama on the stage, he remained a decisive factor behind the scenes. Contemplating the time when he would be able to make his reappearance, he maintained his association with political interests friendly to him, and watched every move of the political situation. His belief that he had been unfairly treated by his party in respect of leadership had considerable substance in view of the fact that nobody could have led the Conservatives to victory in the elections in which he was party leader. He probably did better than anybody else could have done, but his party did not realize it. That realization came later.

Mr. Bowser's emergence in the present campaign was not at all surprising. It was inevitable that sooner or later he would attempt to regain a commanding position in public life, and it needed nobody endowed with the gift of prophecy to foretell either the time or the nature of his reappearance. Opposing Dr. Tolmie's leadership, he decided to form a party of his own, composed of those who were hostile to the former political parties, and he launched his campaign with the intention of contesting the province under such auspices. He was unable, however, to make the headway he expected. The reaction of the public was disappointing, and he found, also, that he could not conduct his campaign with the tireless vigor for which he was noted ten years ago. He therefore associated himself with the Independents, with the question of leadership remaining in suspense until after the election, and himself running as a candidate in both Vancouver Centre and Victoria.

He was a capable organizer, and during his association with the McBride government was largely responsible for the efficient political mechanism which formed a perfect supplement to the personal popularity of Sir Richard McBride. As a departmental head he was a veritable dynamo of industry with an unusual capacity for detail. It is true he made many mistakes in judgment, and his partizanship at times led him into hazardous policies, but he never shirked an issue or ran away from one when it was raised. He did not take kindly to compromise; he was an out-and-outer in most things. As the shock absorber of the McBride government he had little opportunity of developing the personal popularity among either supporters or public which Sir Richard McBride enjoyed, but he gave strength and decision to the administration when they were most urgently needed. The Times consistently opposed him, but it recognized his courage, industry, ability, and determination, not to speak of his qualities as a fighter, and it regrets his loss to the public life of the province, as well as to the citizenship of Victoria where he had made his home for many years.

IN EAST FULHAM

One of the most sensational turnovers in the political history of post-war Britain occurred in the by-election in the London borough constituency of East Fulham yesterday. It was a straight fight between Mr. J. C. Wilmot, Laborite, and Alderman W. J. Waldron, Conservative. Wilmot's vote was 17,790 and Waldron's was 12,950, a majority for the former of no less than 4,840. In 1931, Sir K. P. Vaughan-Morgan—whose death recently caused the vacancy—won the seat for the Conservatives by a majority of 12,733 votes over the combined total of Laborite and Liberal. The electorate of this constituency is a little more than 51,000; the turnover in votes, therefore, is approximately one-third of that total. In the general election of 1931, incidentally, Mr. Wilmot ran in Lewisham and polled 20,000 votes against his opponent's 41,000!

Fulham, when it was a single constituency, and since it has been divided into East and West, has been traditionally Conservative. Even in the great Liberal landslide in 1906, a Liberal succeeded in changing its political allegiance temporarily by a margin of only a few more than 500 votes. In 1910, however, a Conservative again was returned with a majority of 1,726. In the general election of 1918, the first in eight years, the Conservative margin over the combined total of Labor and Liberal candidates was 5,715; in 1922, Sir K. P. Vaughan-Morgan entered the field as the Conservative standard-bearer in another three-cornered contest and ran out winner with 4,982 votes to spare over the total Labor-Liberal ballot. Although the Conservative member's total vote in the tariff election of 1923 was 2,743 less than the joint total of his two opponents, his majority over the nearest contender was 2,074.

In the famous "red" or "Zinoviev letter" election of 1924, Sir Vaughan-Morgan and a Labor candidate fought it out, the former piling up a majority of 6,254. The general election of 1929 produced another three-cornered contest in which the sitting member was elected on a minority vote; even then, however, his nearest rival was 1,705 votes behind him. This election, be it noted, was fought when the cause of Labor in Britain was at its peak, when it returned 288 members to the House of Commons, or twenty more than the Conservative party. As already mentioned, the contest in 1931 resulted in a Conservative victory over Labor and Liberal by 12,733 votes.

Yesterday's by-election was the first in a series of six which will be decided in the next few weeks. Other vacancies are in Rusholme, Manchester; Kilmarnock, Ayr and Bute; Harborough, Leicestershire, and Skipton, Yorkshire. The significance of the verdict in East Fulham consequently lies in the fact that it furnishes an indication of the changed political mood of a traditional Conservative constituency.

While the present British government is called a National government, it is really a Conservative government carrying out a policy which the party had been endeavoring to get the opportunity of promoting since Joseph Chamberlain launched his tariff reform programme in the early days of the century. After the debacle of 1906 the Tariff Reform party went into oblivion, and it was not until 1923—when Mr. Baldwin fulfilled his promise to Mr. Bonar Law that he would not change the country's fiscal policy until he had appealed to the people—that protection was made an issue again. In this contest the Dominions were interested, since the Baldwin proposal was a preference on certain empire commodities. This was in no way a demand or even a request as far as the Dominions were concerned, especially Canada; this country merely suggested that if Britain were determined to launch a protective policy, Canada would naturally like to benefit by it. The result of that election, of course, was the defeat of the Baldwin government and the advent of the first Labor government.

It is not clear how great a part the country's tariff policy played in yesterday's contest in East Fulham. The verdict, however, can hardly be taken as a vote of confidence in the government. In other days, of course, it would have presented an occasion for Mr. MacDonald to issue a gratifying statement. But he is no longer in the Labor fold; he is merely tolerated by his new political friends.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

TRADE DISPUTES
The Washington Post

The truth is that no known method of collective bargaining is ideal. Success in reaching reasonable agreements between representatives of labor and capital depends upon the good sense and the sincerity of the principal negotiators, not upon the existence of an open or a closed shop.

THE WHEAT AGREEMENT
The Brooklyn Eagle

The bond into which a score or so of governments thus enter does not bear the marks of a full-fledged treaty. Rather, it is an administrative agreement on the part of the respective executive agents of these governments; it binds them only in so far as they may not be overruled by legislative action. Nor does it necessarily interfere with such special arrangements as the British commercial pacts made a year ago at Ottawa. If the agreement succeeds it will do so by not attempting too much. An ounce of co-operative good-will among the participant countries should be worth more than a pound of pressure.

HIGH THINKING AND HUMBLE LIVING
The Cleveland Plain Dealer

Education in Iowa is going back to barter. At the State University several co-operative dormitories will be opened. Students will do all the work, including cooking. Minimum costs will figure out not more than $175 a year for tuition, room, board and text books. Students whose families can supply a fat hog or some other easily consumable food asset will be given credit on their board bills. For years many a deal has been dismayed by the difficulty of reconciling sound scholarship and soft living in fraternity houses and de luxe dormitories. Now depression finds new ways of uniting high thinking with humble living.

Loose Ends

We follow the trail of politics—through the first blizzard into the little country school houses—where the orators must keep moving to avoid freezing stiff—and where a candidate must talk all day and dance all night—if he wants to get elected in the high north.

By H. B. W.

MORE SNOW

YOU MUST be tired of reading about the snow in this column, but it can't be helped. There isn't much else up here in the High North, except politics and oratory. I have just come, in fact, through the first blizzard of the winter, and am feeling more numb than usual. Yes, here I am, half-frozen and utterly sodden with the fierce politics of the North, and a fellow in Vancouver has just told me on the wireless telephone that it's almost hot down there.

I don't like to remind you again that you are more fortunate than you deserve to be in Victoria to-day, but I can't help it. Out on that North Road that runs from here in Prince George over to little Hazelton, between its two rivers, they are shivering to-night in an icy blast. The fields, which were brown with the brown of autumn when we went west two days ago, are white now. Snow is piling up against the little log houses. The cattle, wooly with their new winter coats, cower in the wind, and the people tell themselves that winter has come in earnest, almost a month early.

POOR STATESMEN

PITY THE poor statesman on a night like this. With the business of saving the country at this election nothing can be allowed to interfere. The cars still slither and bounce over the road through snow nearly a foot deep on the summits. Little groups of people gather in the country school and shiver about the drum stove while the candidate addresses them from the platform, though his face is hardly distinguishable by the light of the single oil lamp. Sometimes he paces up and down the room between the pupils' desks as he talks, to keep from freezing to death. On a night like this even the dogs are allowed in, and they scamper about the room in a fashion most disconcerting to a man who is proclaiming the principles of Liberalism, Conservatism or Socialism, as the case may be.

But that is not all. There is much more to the work of the candidate in the High North than that. You ought to see Mayor Taylor, for instance, giving a free dance to the people of little Vanderhoof, after addressing them for an hour and a half. They come to hear Mayor Taylor in large numbers when he gives a free dance. Young people sit through an hour and a half of politics patiently, without knowing or caring what it is all about. They cheer Mayor Taylor for his dance and they dance most of the night to music supplied by an accordion, a banjo and a fiddle in the gnarled hands of old Ernie Madden, the fiddling cowboy from Mud River, who has come in his high boots, ten-gallon hat and everything.

But, alas, they won't vote for Mayor Taylor. His great duel with Mr. Manson, to which the electors looked forward with such excitement, is rather tame, since neither he nor Mr. Manson will mention one another, and no one thinks that Mr. Taylor has a chance of election. Still, they are getting to like Mr. Taylor up here and are flattered to learn that he is going to live with them, even if he isn't elected.

SOCIAL LIFE

IT IS HARD for a city innocent like me to keep up with the tide of politics and social life up here. After he has spoken for a couple of hours Mr. Manson dances half the night with the ladies of the village (most of whom have votes). They keep it up almost until dawn, and dawn comes late in these regions—waltzes, fox trots and all the old-fashioned square dances, polkas and lancers, or whatever you call them. A politician must be an accomplished man if he wants to get elected in Omineca. What is more, he must look as if he were enjoying it, which, after several weeks of talking and dancing, is not so easy.

No one seriously doubts that Mr. Manson will be elected, and his fight is entirely with a young fellow from the C.C.F., who is cruising about this wilderness in an old flivver which boasts no side curtains. This chap, Arthur Windle, has dared to meet the undefeated son of Omineca in public debate and acquitted himself well, while promising the destitute settlers a sudden affluence if his party is elected. That always appeals to a destitute settler, and you don't know destitution until you have seen the hardships of these people.

POVERTY

ONE CANDIDATE told me to-day that he had held a meeting in a private house for lack of a hall, and the settler's wife, he learned afterwards, was deeply humiliated because she could not offer him supper, having nothing in the house but soda crackers and some moose meat.

It is hard to believe, indeed, that there is a Victoria and an Empress Hotel and a Rockland Avenue as you drive through this northern blizzard and see the lights in the little log houses, some of them forty miles from the nearest neighbor, and the endless snow and jack pines. Sometimes you find a child, bundled up until only his eyes are showing, on the long cold walk to school, perhaps five miles off, while back in Victoria the children must have car tickets if the school is ten blocks away.

OLD SANDY

HOW GOOD it feels to reach old Sandy Annan's great Old Country inn at Endako where, in the summer, the trout fishing, according to the expert testimony of Attorney-General Pooley, is the best in the world. Old Sandy, who learned the trade of innkeeping in Leith and London, is worth a whole day's drive through the snow. It is a joy to watch him fry steaks on his great stove, and to listen to him tell how he got his inn license in London on Trafalgar Day, in Trafalgar Street, and how he called his inn the Lord Nelson.

Or, sitting on the barber's chair, which is the prized furniture of his parlor, he will tell you strange stories of the sea, where he was a sailor on real sailing ships, and ask you if you don't want to buy his excellent fishing lodge on the river for $2,000 cash, though it is worth three times that figure. Here I am going to insert a free advertisement for Sandy and say that this is a real opportunity for some small capitalist who wants to set up a profitable establishment beside the Endako, where the trout fishing is the best in the world and only man is vile.

Then in the morning Sandy knocks at your door with a jug of boiling hot water for shaving, and soon you are on your way again, with a cheery farewell in Sandy's rich Scottish burr. So back we come to the fringe of civilization, through the driving snow, and we know exactly how Napoleon felt on the way home from Moscow.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

SUNSETS

Through many years I have watched sunset skies
Of rose and mauve, of amber, turquoise, jade,
And I have seen the hues of paradise
Flare out in rainbow flame and fleetly fade.

I know where one tall pine against the west
Stands up to share the young moon, dropping down;
And I have seen, above a high hill's crest
The bright cloud-towers of some celestial town.

Oh, all the jewels, all the flowers are there,
Heaped for a little time along the sky,
And this their message: How can man despair,
When day in such triumphant mood can die?

SEARCH CONTINUED AT SALMON RIVER

Sayward, Oct. 26.—While parties of residents of the valley have been searching the flats and sloughs that form the delta at the mouth of Salmon River, in the hope of recovering the body of Jock Logan, who disappeared October 15, and whose boat was found upside down at the mouth of the river, Provincial Constable S. W. Dawson, of Campbell River, has been conducting an inquiry at Kelsey Bay.

Jock left four valuable cougar hounds, which, it is understood, will be offered for sale.

H. T. Allen, C.C.F. candidate for Comox Riding, supported by M. Swan, held a meeting in the Sayward community hall October 21, J. Lewis occupying the chair.

REQUIESCAT IN PACE

With grief we hear the mournful tocsin toll
Intuned to mark the passing of his soul;
Let us, a little, hush the battle's din,
Linger a moment from the rush to win,
In loftier spirit look up to the skies
And think on the stout heart that broken lies
Making his fight 'gainst odds and enemies

Just as he ever did, unto the end
Of life. Ready to be spent, and spend.
His motto, "Here stand I, needs be, alone";
None can do more, or voice a higher tone.

Bury him, then, and with him all our spites.
Oh, that, when struggling, in our passing fights,
We could foresee our dearest enemies
Stretched on the field, gazing with dimming eyes,
Ent'ring on brighter scenes and higher power
"Requiescat in pace" Warrior.

TRIBUTE TO HON. IAN MACKENZIE

To the Editor:—To those who were privileged to hear the Hon. Ian Mackenzie there will be no room for doubt for whom they will cast their votes on November 27.

The straightforward, clean-cut Liberal policy—not omitting the record of the long list of social legislation indisputably brought in by the party—when presented in the capable manner of Mr. Mackenzie convinces even the most sceptical (as demonstrated at this meeting by the absence of one murmur from as politically mixed an audience as has perhaps ever previously met on this island).

A politician who can dissect and applaud his political opponents, openly admitting their good points, and explaining the deficiencies and the weak points in their armor (unsuited to the battle to be waged against the present economic stress) and scathingly denounce the vandalism of unscrupulous Communistic propaganda, and who will lay his cards on the table by inviting question, (without any such being asked) will certainly convince any electorate of an indomitable courage and his own convictions regarding the policies his party is sponsoring for the permanent recovery of the country.

Especially is the honorable gentleman to be applauded for his heroic fight for sound principles on the eve of so important an election, in the face of the fact that he was obviously suffering from a throat trouble.

He can rest assured, however, that his efforts have not been in vain.

VOTING LIBERAL.

HEALTH INSURANCE

To the Editor: — I am glad to see from reports in the papers that Mr. Anscomb and other candidates in Victoria are in favor of state health insurance.

May I through your columns ask each candidate just one question?

Namely: In the event of state health insurance becoming law, are you in favor of each contributor being allowed free choice of his practitioner? This to apply to drugless practitioners as well as medical men.

I am much interested in this question, as I have, by the blessing of God, been raised from my bed, after keeping it three and a half years. This was through treatment by a local drugless practitioner.

There are two reasons why I am asking this question through your columns: First, because I cannot afford to write to each candidate, and, secondly, because I am sure there are many other voters interested in this question.

I should be glad to know the opinion of other voters on this vital question.

"SOCIAL OWNERSHIP"

To the Editor:—In reply to Mr. C. Wooley's letter in The Times of October 20, criticizing my letter on "Social Ownership."

My friend said I was confused. Well after reading, and re-reading his letter, I wish to say if I am confused, he surely is doubly confused.

He speaks of the lateness of my theories, etc., I can only state my theories have been well known to my friend for the past two years and while one cannot do full justice to any subject in a letter to the press, and especially the subject I wrote on, I had hoped it might catch the eyes of some individuals sufficiently interested to further investigate the subject, so as to get a clear understanding what the different political parties stand for in this election.

My friend is not only confused, but he contradicts himself, namely, he criticizes "Social Ownership," but goes on to say: "Millions now idle will never work without a new birth in economic production and distribution." Call it what you may it must be "social ownership."

Mr. Wooley in his sentence says I implied sinister intentions. Well here they are: The C.C.F. are promising everything to the workers except the moon. They promise they will abolish poverty, give the worker full result of his labor power, work or wages, shorter hours, etc. And as Dr. Telford said at the City Temple: "A new Buick car every year." Can they carry out any of these promises? Absolutely not.

All the C.C.F. advocate is public ownership, which means government operation of industry with regulation of working hours and wages, etc. The ownership would still remain in the hands of the capitalist, as bondholders who would receive the surplus value produced by the workers in the shape of guaranteed interest on their bonds. The workers would still be compelled to sell their labor power for wages. Through the competition of the unemployed to-day the prices of labor power (wages) are below the maintenance level. Hence under the C.C.F. plan it is impossible to improve the condition of the worker under capitalism.

Now, we have a very prominent party in the C.C.F., formerly the S.P. of C., and these men know very well the above promises cannot be fulfilled.

Hence I could not support a party whose aim is to emancipate themselves for four years, instead of emancipation of society as a whole.

C. LUFF.
Langford, Oct. 26, 1933.

WHY WAS MRS. LEWIS REJECTED?

To the Editor:—In view of the criticisms passed on Mrs. J. Lewis of Saanich, I feel it is my duty as one of the women in the Women's Movement to tell both papers we are sure she never feels she is any better than the rest of us. Better educated she may be and high-up she may have been. I was parlor maid to some friends of hers in England before my marriage,

Challenges Women To Exercise the Franchise

Mrs. M. Hall Addresses Y.W.C.A. on the History of Women's Movement

Says Undercurrent of Discrimination Evident in Industrial World To-day

Declaring that there is an undercurrent of discrimination working against women in the industrial world during the present economic crisis, Mrs. Madge Hall yesterday afternoon before the Y.W.C.A. made a strong appeal to women to realize their responsibilities as citizens by making use of their franchise whenever and wherever the opportunity occurred. Her theme was women's responsibility towards voting and in it she traced the history of the women's movement and advanced spiritual and material reasons why the privilege for which its pioneers had fought so long and valiantly should not be neglected.

FOUNDATIONS LAID IN 1697

Mrs. Hall outlined the growth of the women's movement in Great Britain, the foundations of which were laid in 1697 by Mary Astell in an article by the quaint title of "Serious Proposals to Ladies." As early as 1790 in France, women had memorialized the government of that day appealing for citizenship equality with men.

One interesting point brought out by the speaker was that prior to 1832 the statutes of Great Britain might have been, and were on several occasions, interpreted as extending the franchise to women. But in that year the wording was changed from "man," which had been read as mankind, to "male persons," thus barring women.

BRITISH PIONEERS

Some of the great pioneers in women's emancipation were recalled, including John Stuart Mill, and in later years Dr. and Mrs. Pankhurst and their two daughters, Sylvia and Christable, Elizabeth Wolstenholme and many others. Dr. Pankhurst had introduced into the House a bill to enfranchise women, which was passed, but unfortunately no woman claimed the privilege for thirty years, by which time it was invalid owing to non-usage.

The speaker recalled the militant campaign which started in 1905, after the women of Great Britain had exhausted every constitutional means of obtaining their rights. She also touched upon the campaign in British Columbia, which resulted in the women being given the vote in 1916.

POLITICAL BIRTHRIGHT

"These pioneer women, who handed down to the present generation the birthright which is our badge of free citizenship, our right to record our political decisions without fear or favor, our right to express an opinion on subjects that touch every phase of our life, should not be forgotten. We must not, partly for their sakes, through lack of interest, allow this right of the franchise to fall into disuse. Neither must we, through lack of knowledge, allow our vote to be exploited and exchange our birthright for a mess of pottage. If we neglect these things, then we cannot call ourselves worthy daughters of the great women who saw the cause through to its conclusion," said the speaker.

Mrs. Hall pointed out that women to-day control about half the voting power of the world and declared that fear of this power had led to opposition by the capitalist class, which was afraid of their influence on industrial legislation, and by the militaristic class which feared their deep-rooted desire for the abolition of war.

TO OFFSET DISCRIMINATION

To-day, on every hand, was evidence of discrimination against women in the industrial and business world, she claimed, quoting instances of such attitudes. Women should offset such discriminatory tactics by exercising their franchise intelligently and ascertaining before any election if the candidate suffered from an "anti-woman complex."

Mrs. Roy Angus presided. Mrs. Maude Hammond moved the vote of thanks to the speaker, and took the occasion to move a standing, silent tribute to the memory of W. J. Bowser, K.C.

TEA SERVED

Following the address tea was served, the occasion being the sixth anniversary of the opening of the new "Y" building. The tea arrangements were convened by Mrs. Maude Hammond and Miss Norma Macdonald, assisted by Mrs. Pauline, Mrs. Robert Green, Mrs. Charles Earle, Miss Inez Garrett and Mrs. John Baxter. The table, at which Mrs. Arthur Walsh and Mrs. F. J. Norris presided, was prettily decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and gold tapers.

CO-EDS SHOULD BE DECORATIVE

Oxford, Eng., Oct. 26 (Canadian Press Cable).—The Oxford woman undergraduate, "however plain she may be," is at least trying to make the best of herself, declares the well-known Oxford University organ, The Isis.

"The other day, passing through the streets of Oxford, we saw here and there painted faces. It was a happy sign, and later in a restaurant when we saw an undergraduate positively powdering her nose we could scarcely check our applause.

"If Nature has withheld her gifts artifice may legitimately rectify the omission. Women, even undergraduates, owe it to the human race to be as decorative as possible."

MRS. PAGE DIES AT QUALICUM

Qualicum Beach, Oct. 26. — Mrs. George Shaw Page, who has been a resident here for the last nine years, passed away Monday, in her eightieth year.

Mrs. Page, who was born on June 20, 1854, at Frome, Somersetshire, came to Canada in 1882, and took up her residence in the pioneer settlement of Cannington Manor, founded by her father, Capt. E. M. Pierce. This settlement contained the historic church of All Saints, the first Anglican church to be consecrated on the prairies west of the Manitoba boundary.

In 1889 she moved to Moosomin, Saskatchewan, and for many years took an active part in church, Sunday school and other community activities.

Mrs. Page came to Qualicum in 1924, where, during her residence here, she established a church embroidery guild with the aid of the local women, which has furnished St. Mark's Church with complete altar embroideries. In addition to this, her junior guild of girls has equipped St. Mark's with many articles of church furnishings, and attained a very high standard of needle work.

Funeral services will be held in St. Mark's to-day.

Catholic Women Urged To Combat Communism

Rev. Father Wood Speaks of "Menace" at Diocesan League Convention

Excellent Reports of All Phases of Work Given; Officers Re-elected

Urging upon its members the need of unity in combating the menace of Communism which is making serious inroads upon the life of the people of Canada, Rev. Father Wood in a forceful address before the Catholic Women's League yesterday evening exhorted the League members not "to live in a fools' paradise, but to prepare themselves to withstand the powers of evil which are threatening the governments of Canada and of the United States."

Support of Catholic education and the conscientious use of the power of the franchise were two serious obligations not to be lightly considered, said the speaker. He also stressed the importance of preserving the traditions which had been brought from the older lands and from centres where Catholic traditions were strong and ideals had survived and remained upon a solid basis; the integrity of home, school and church must be loyally upheld, and increasing numerically with a full consciousness of the duties and strength of Catholic womanhood a great contribution can be made for God and Canada in the west.

NATIONAL CONVENTION HERE

Father Wood was the speaker at the evening session of the annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League, held in Our Lady Queen of Peace Hall, Esquimalt. Mrs. R. A. Duncan presided at both sessions, and in her presidential address spoke with appreciation of the unfailing kindness and co-operation of the clergy, and the various church organizations. She spoke with pride of the fact that Victoria will be the first city of the west to welcome the national convention, a telegram being received from the national president accepting the invitation to hold that gathering here in June, 1934.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

By acclamation all officers were returned for a second term, only the council members having served two years were replaced as follows: Mrs. Blair Reid in Victoria subdivision, replaced the late Mrs. MacLernan; Mrs. Samuelson, Cobble Hill, replaced Mrs. Kingsley. In Esquimalt subdivision Mrs. Smyth replaced Mrs. Harris. The other officers are: President, Mrs. R. A. Duncan; first vice-president, Mrs. H. O'Brien; second vice-president, Mrs. A. Grant; third vice-president, Mrs. C. A. Sabin; secretary-treasurer, Miss K. Mackay. Counsellors: Juniors, Miss Agnes Grant, president; Miss Eulalia O'Neill, Miss Nellie Cannon; Cobble Hill, Mrs. Samuelson, Mrs. Windau, Miss Deloume. Esquimalt: Mrs. Fagan, Mrs. Smyth, Miss Louise Dougal. Victoria: Mrs. McManus, Mrs. Kyle, Mrs. Kissinger, Mrs. Blair Reid. Port Alberni: Mrs. Rooney, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Harris. Mrs. Martin was reappointed convener for St. Clare's Monastery.

Mrs. Duncan spoke with regret of the loss the League had sustained in the deaths of Mrs. J. A. J. McKenna and Mrs. R. P. MacLernan, both highly valued members of the league.

ORGANIZER'S REPORT

The report of the diocesan organizer, Miss H. O'Brien, was presented and told of the visit paid by herself and the president to Port Alberni and Cobble Hill.

Mrs. J. D. Kissinger reported on education, and the interest taken by the Catholic Women's League in carrying on the various phases of the work in which the League was always willing to assist. The work of the Junior League in connection with the teaching of Cathechism was also referred to in Mrs. Kissinger's comprehensive report.

At the close of this resume, a tribute was paid by the president to Rev. Brother Perry and Brother Keogh who have left for other spheres of work.

SOCIAL SERVICE

Miss H. O'Brien, speaking on Social Service, explained that all such work is now to be undertaken by St. Vincent de Paul Society, which will take complete charge of such matters as food, clothing, fuel, and rents. Miss O'Brien told of some cases already dealt with in connection with placing needy girls in the Sisters of Service Hotel in Vancouver.

Mrs. Ebbs-Canavan reported for study clubs and for the press. The work of Miss K. Scanlan and of Miss Madeline Clay in organizing study clubs among the members of Victoria Subdivision was highly commended, and the success of the Junior League members in their catechetical course referred to with appreciation.

Mrs. H. Cannon, convener of the magazine, The Canadian League, reported the number of subscribers to this official organ of the league for Canada. Mrs. W. C. McManus, convenor of tag days, reported that the league had assisted in every public cause through this medium.

MESSAGE TO BISHOP

Regret at the absence and illness of Bishop Murray was voiced by the president, and a telegram of sympathy with flowers was sent from the diocesan subdivision in convention.

UNITY URGED

Mrs. McManus introduced the subject of "Catholic Action," and the meeting went on record as endorsing a resolution passed at the national convention last summer in Quebec, that all Catholic women's societies, while retaining their individual autonomy, should affiliate with the Catholic Women's League, in order to make for more visible unity.

Congratulations were sent to Mrs. George Roberts, mother of Father Roland Roberts, the first native-born Victoria boy in twenty-one years to be ordained priest in St. Andrew's Cathedral. Mrs. Kingsley of Cobble Hill Subdivision spoke briefly upon the particular needs of the smaller subdivisions, and the valiant way in which they are being fulfilled.

Mrs. W. C. McManus presented the report for Victoria Subdivision. The The large returns from varied enterprises were shown to have been devoted to church taxation, national and diocesan obligations, scholarship fund, social welfare, school prizes, donations to the Women's Workroom and Sisters of Service.

DIOCESAN REPORT

In her diocesan report, Miss K. Mackay cleverly summarized the work of the last year, a great part of which had been spent by her in England, where she had observed the work of the Catholic Women's League and the Catholic Social Guild. Victoria Diocesan Board is affiliated with the Local Council of Women, and through its five subdivisions has taken its place in the affairs of women, legislation, state health insurance, etc. Mrs. W. C. McManus is acting convener of citizenship for the Local Council and her report was the subject for congratulatory comment.

The report of the Cobble Hill Subdivision was presented by Mrs. Windau, covering a wide field of activities. Miss Louise Dougal reported for Esquimalt Subdivision, and showed how every branch of social activity had been faithfully carried out. Miss Agnes Grant reported for the Junior Subdivision and her report was outstanding in the success of the various enterprises undertaken in aid of the Sunshine Camp and other activities.

The evening session was preceded by benediction at 8 o'clock in the church, Rev. Father Wood, diocesan chaplain, officiating. During the interval between the afternoon and evening sessions a delicious supper was served by Esquimalt Subdivision, at which the delegates from the various subdivisions, together with Rev. Father Wood, Rev. Father Gaudette and Rev. Father Kennedy were guests of the Diocesan Board. The tables were beautifully decorated with autumn flowers and Mrs. Fagan, convener, was assisted by Mrs. O'Leary, Mrs. Spelling, Mrs. Burt and Mrs. Harris. The lovely floral decorations of the hall were arranged by Mrs. W. W. W. Baines. Vocal solos were sung by Mrs. S. A. Shrimpton, accompanied by Mrs. Condor, and Kathleen Lavell, with Miss Conway at the piano.

The hope chest, in charge of Mrs. C. A. Sabin, was drawn for at the close of the evening session and won by Mrs. Allen of Signal Hill.

BEAVER CLUB JOLLY HOSTS

Hudson's Bay Employees Stage "Bohemian Night" at Crystal Garden

A delightful evening was spent by the Beaver Club of the Hudson's Bay Company and their friends at the Crystal Garden yesterday evening, when "Bohemian Night" was observed with a most attractive concert, followed by dancing.

The concert was held in the lower hall, and the announcing of the items was broadcast through the radio to the audience by the chairman, Mr. George McAdams. Mr. McAdams, who arranged the affair, was assisted by the social committee, including Miss B. Shadbolt, Miss Hazel Cross, Miss Elsie Baxter, Miss Irene McAdams, J. Grant, Harry Ward, Walter Woodley and Donald Fish.

Miss Isobel Crawford, attired as the Bohemian Girl, sang several charming solos, which were enthusiastically applauded. The Hudson's Bay has organized a drama club, which gave its first performance under the title of the H.B.C. Players' Club. Three one-act plays were given and evidently much enjoyed by the audience.

Miss D. Barker opened the programme, which was followed by a motion picture by Douglas Flintoff, entitled "Old King Cole." Towards the end of the programme, Mr. Flintoff showed moving pictures taken at the staff picnic last summer. This was followed by solos by Mr. Maguire.

Miss F. Kelley, a talented young artist, received great applause for her dance "Waltz Bluette." Mrs. D. Flintoff gave two very clever comedy solos, and the "Shadow Waltz" by Miss Thelma Stratford and Mr. Daniel Plater was most attractive. "The Hill Billies" playing old favorites, were most popular musicians and caused much laughter. Mr. E. Crockford performed tricks of magic.

At 10.15 o'clock the gathering adjourned to the dance floor, where a delightful time was spent in dancing to a programme of latest popular numbers arranged by the club's orchestra, of which Mr. V. Johnson is the conductor.

SEES BULL IN A CHINA SHOP

Her Majesty Queen Mary, has often heard of a bull in a china shop but had never seen one in such peculiar circumstances until recently. Shopping at Fakenham, Norfolk, the Queen and the Princess Royal were examining goods in the china department when a young bull suddenly appeared almost beside Her Majesty. Luckily the animal was removed before any damage resulted and the royal party was unperturbed.

MISSIONARY IS NOT POLITICIAN

Rev. M. Billester Denies C.C.F. Allegations and Denounces Communism

Tells W.C.T.U. He Has Been Threatened and Ordered to Leave City

"I did not know, before coming here, what the C.C.F. stood for in politics," Rev. Michael Billester said in answer to charges that he had been brought to British Columbia for political purposes during his address before the district meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, held in the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon.

"If the C.C.F. has no affiliation with the Communists, then they should not be opposed to anything that I say about Russia. I have been told to leave Russia alone. That I do not intend to do. I am not a politician and I am not looking for trouble, but I come from that rugged part of Russia, and have seen fireworks before, and I repeat that Russian Communism is nothing short of a rule of fear and guns, of tyranny and depression and God knows the Russians suffered plenty."

INTIMIDATION ALLEGED

The missionary, who has been conducting a campaign against the Communistic doctrine, declared he had been intimidated by written threats of violence and "ordered" to leave Victoria before to-morrow morning. He denounced Communism as the most treacherous thing that had ever come upon the earth and painted a sordid picture of the misery and suffering of the Russian people through the coming of Communism.

Mr. Billester took issue with the impressions given by certain persons and groups who had spent short periods in Russia under the guidance of "official Russia." He also referred to the reports that the Soviet, through collective farming, had 75,000,000 bushels of grain on hand for export. "To me this is one of the greatest conundrums. How can it be that this enormous amount is ready for export when 10,000,000 souls are crying out for bread which they cannot buy even if they had the money to do so?" he asked.

The speaker claimed that the difficulty with the Communists in Canada is that they only know the theory of Communism and not the practical side of it.

R. G. Howell gave a report of the recent conference of the British Columbia Prohibition Association, held in Vancouver.

Rev. G. A. Reynolds, chairman, declared that it would almost seem that prohibition was a dead issue. "We are now on the losing side, but we know that our cause is right and right will win ultimately. We must now start with the education of our younger people so that they may grow up with the principles of temperance instilled in them." Mr. Reynolds praised the work of the W.C.T.U. and expressed sincere hope that the good work could be continued.

During the meeting, Mrs. J. Travis gave a solo. Mrs. C. C. Spofford moved the vote of appreciation and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. John Hood.

Indoor Garden Party Is Novel Entertainment

Summer impinged upon autumn yesterday when an indoor garden party was staged in the New Thought Hall by the Native Daughters of British Columbia, Post No. 3. The affair was held both afternoon and evening and for the occasion, the hall was transformed into a bower of flowers, the effect being achieved with clever paper replicas of blossoms of every hue, two large Japanese sunshades enhancing the alfresco effect.

A "Jack Horner" pie centred the room. This took the place of the usual fish pond and was in charge of Miss Jean Lorimer. The novelty stall was in great demand and was under the management of Mrs. R. F. Dalziel. Aprons were sold by Mrs. J. A. Lorimer and Mrs. E. J. Rutledge, and the candy by Mrs. F. Pomeroy and Mrs. J. MacIntosh. Home-cooking was in charge of Miss E. Neelands. Mrs. J. C. Newbury was the general convener.

Delightful programmes were arranged by Mrs. F. C. Webb, chief factor. The afternoon programme included dancing by the pupils of Miss Florence Clough, those taking part being Thelma Strafford, Ethel Gillies and Daniel Plater. Mrs. V. Bertucci accompanied the dancers. Vocal solos were given by Miss C. Grieves, accompanied by Mrs. P. Waters, and pianoforte selections by Kathleen Sobieralskie.

Pupils of Miss Mona Jewell gave several dances in the evening, Miss Jewell also taking part. The young dancers were Nancy White, Beatrice Stonekins, Frances Borde, Doreen Munn, Sheila Grice and Margaret Welsh. Vocal solos were given by Miss I. Tait, accompanied by Mrs. Bartlett, and Miss Dolly Rutledge, accompanied by Miss Eileen Bennett. Pianoforte numbers were played by Miss Winnifred Green.

Tea was served by Mrs. W. H. Kinsman, Mrs. W. Champion, Mrs. R. A. C. Grant, Mrs. L. A. Gordon and Mrs. D. C. Nickerson. Tea cup reading, which was most popular, was in charge of Mrs. J. Mellows. The proceeds from the affair will be devoted towards the funds of the post.

Man With a Thousand Masks

By Augustus Muir

"How do you know, that, Richard? Elizabeth didn't tell you. You've had inquiries made about me!"

His glance fell.

"What else could I do? That day we met in the street you even refused me your address. If I hadn't had inquiries made I'd never have found where you lived; I'd have known nothing about you, except that you were in London, down on your luck." He squared his shoulders. "Since I've admitted so much I may as well tell you I know what the doctors at the clinic have said. You're heading for a complete breakdown. It's imperative that you have rest and country air."

"Your investigations, at least, seem to have been thorough," she said bitterly. "I suppose you have also been making inquiries about—my husband?"

He gave her a quick glance.

"I know nothing about Henry Marlowe," he said deliberately, and stopped, knowing that he trod on delicate ground. Henry Marlowe, young man-about-town, reputedly wealthy, had laid siege to her affections, carried her off abroad by storm, and after less than a year had deserted her. There had even been a rumor at the time that he had served a term of imprisonment in a French gaol. But nobody had known the true facts, for her father had died in the interval, and none of her old friends had even seen her again. "What happened to him, Anne?" he ventured. "You haven't told me—"

"I cannot discuss my husband with you, Richard."

He looked down; he had half expected this.

"What your husband is—or was—makes no difference to me. All I want is to help you."

Anne Marlowe shook her head.

"I believe you mean it for kindness, Richard. But you don't understand me any more than you ever did! Anything you may do for Elizabeth is a different matter, but I—I can accept nothing from you."

He looked at her in silence; raised his hands in a brief gesture, and let them fall. There was an interval in which neither spoke, and they avoided each other's glance.

"I'm not ungrateful, Richard," she continued. "I want you to believe that. But there's something—"

She drew in a quick breath and turned away, and he knew what she meant. The old bitterness still lay at her heart!

"I once loved you, Anne," he said steadily. "Then I felt bitter, too, for a time. But that's done with. Now I'm ony sorry for you. You've made it plain, however, that you want neither my pity nor my help—nor, indeed, my friendship. Well, I'm bound to respect your wishes."

"You put things well, Richard! You always did. Before you go there's one thing you ought to know. Yesterday I heard from my husband. He's in London—he wants to see me."

Sir Richard Templeton's eyebrows went up in surprise, and then his mouth hardened.

"Do you intend to see him?"

"I do."

"You—you mean that?" he demanded.

He looked at her for several moments, and she met his gaze firmly.

"I've given you my answer, Richard."

"Then I've got nothing more to say." With a shrug of his shoulders, he turned aside. "May I have a word with Elizabeth before I go?"

When mother and daughter were together their resemblance was striking but the one had the fresh bloom of youth upon her, while the other, in contrast, looked older than she was.

"Good evening, Sir Richard!"

"I hear you've been out. Had a pleasant time? Now, just a word about to-morrow morning. If I'm out when you arrive I want you to take a taxi-cab to my chambers in the Temple—my clerk there will give you something for me. Then go to Scotland Yard and ask for Chief Inspector Tripp. You know the man? He's on the Lord John case. He'll give you a file of papers for me. Be careful of them. Yes, that's all. You know the news about Lord John, I expect."

"Arrested, Sir Richard," she replied in a voice that she was striving to control.

"No, no. Later news than that," he said. "Lord John escaped from the police station before they'd even examined him!"

He gave a short laugh, but it died on his lips as he caught the look on Mrs. Marlowe's face.

Elizabeth's mother was staring past him at the door of the room. He turned, and saw it was slowly opening.

CHAPTER V

Somebody must have stealthily entred the flat! With an exclamation, Sir Richard Templeton took a quick step forward, but was too late to see more than the figure of a man out on the landing—a man with a white, sinister face that swiftly disappeared into the darkness.

There was a frown on Sir Richard Templeton's face as he hurried to Euston road, where he picked up a taxi-cab. Giving a number in Carbery Square, he glanced at his watch and settled down on the seat, thoughtfully turning over in his mind his visit to the Marlowes dismal home at No. 12 Deacon Street, Somers Town.

There could be little doubt about the identity of the intruder who had so silently disappeared on finding a visitor in the flat; plainly it was Henry Marlowe himself. Templeton had never met Marlowe, and his glimpse of the face at the door had been indistinct, but it was sufficient that the man had already communicated with his wife—had indeed expressed an urgent desire to see her.

But why come to her stealthily at such an hour of the night? In perplexity Templeton sat fingering his lower lip as his cab sped toward the West End of London.

Descending in Carbery Square, he went across the pavement to the lighted portico of No. 37. The front door was partly open; music and laughter came from within, and from the street one caught a glimpse of men and women in evening dress passing up and down the wide staircase beyond the hall. A liveried footman took Templeton's hat and coat and directed him to the large drawing-room on the floor above. The dance had been going on for some time, and Mrs. Prideaux was upstairs mixing with her guests.

As Templeton entered the drawing-room, and paused to look around for his hostess, a woman on a settee in the corner leaned towards her neighbor.

"You know who that is, don't you?" she whispered.

"The face is terribly familiar," admitted the other. "But then, I'm so stupid with faces, my dear. Surely it's Richard Templeton! But what on earth is he doing here? I always understood that Templeton was rather a recluse—a woman hater, in fact. Is he turning over a new leaf?"

"Opening a new volume!" said the older woman, with a smile. "Mrs. Prideaux and he may make a match of it yet."

"Templeton marry Lydia Prideaux?"

"And why not? A wealthy young widow and a famous barrister. Very suitable. They've been seen lunching together lately, so I'm told, and he's never been known to come to affairs of this kind before. I'm sure there's something in it. There's old Captain Stirling. He'll know; he knows everything. How are you, James? We're talking scandal, and we need your saintly influence. Do you know Sir William Templeton?"

Uncle Wiggily And Sammie's Mask

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

One day just as Uncle Wiggily was about to hop out of his hollow stump bungalow to go look for an adventure, two of his little rabbit boys, named Buster and Duster, also began hopping.

"Are you going to school?" asked their father.

"Yes, daddy," they answered.

"And do you know your lessons so the Lady Mouse Teacher will say you are clever little rabbit boys?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Oh, yes," answered Buster and Duster.

So they hopped away, but their father, watching them, called to them, saying:

"That isn't the way to school."

"We know that, daddy," spoke Duster. "But we are going this way to call for Sammie Littletail. He wants to hop to school with us."

"Very well," replied Mr. Longears. "I'll hop that way with you. I want to ask Mr. Littletail to come adventuring with me."

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along with Buster and Duster and in a little while they reached the log house where Sammie and Susie Littletail lived with their father and mother. Once the father and mother of Sammie and Susie had been lost and during that time the rabbit children lived with Uncle Wiggily. But, after a while, Mr. and Mrs. Littletail were found so they took the children to live with them in a big log, not far from Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow.

"Hey, Sammie!" called Buster, when he and his brother were within sight of the log house.

"Come on out and go to school with us!" shouted Duster.

But Sammie did not come out. Instead his mother opened the door of the log house and said:

"Sammie will be out in a little while."

"What's he doing?" Buster wanted to know.

"He's trying on his mask," said Sammie's mother.

"You mean his Hallowe'en false face?" asked Duster.

"Yes, that's it," replied the rabbit lady. "Oh, hello, Uncle Wiggily!" She greeted Mr. Longears. "Won't you come in?"

"Thank you, no," he said. "But if Mr. Littletail is around I'd like him to come adventuring with me."

"He has just hopped down the road" answered his wife. "If you hop fast you may catch him."

"I'll do that," decided Mr. Longears, but before he started to hop after the other rabbit gentleman, Buster said:

"Don't you want to wait and see what kind of a mask Sammie has for Hallowe'en?"

"Why, yes, I think that would be fun," spoke Mr. Longears. "Where is Sammie, Mrs. Littletail," he asked.

"Oh, that boy!" exclaimed his mother. "He's out in the garage and I wish you'd get him started toward school. I'm afraid he'll be late. This last week, when it's so near Hallowe'en, Sammie goes out in the garage every morning to try on his mask."

"What kind of a false face is he going to wear?" asked Duster.

"I'm sure I don't know," laughed Sammie's mother. "He says it's a secret and he won't tell me nor his sister Susie. But he may show it to you, Uncle Wiggily."

"Come, boys, we'll go take a look," suggested Mr. Longears. "We don't want Sammie to be late for school."

As Uncle Wiggily, Buster and Duster reached the garage they heard Sammie yelling:

"Help! Help! Help!"

"What's the matter?" shouted Mr. Longears.

"I've got my false face on and I can't get it off!" cried Sammie. "Oh, Help! Help! Help!"

"It must be a queer false face he has on that he can't get off!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "Come on, boys, we'll help Sammie!"

Inside the garage Uncle Wiggily, Buster and Duster saw a strange sight. Sammie had his head fast in a big tin can that had once held applesauce. The can was down to Sammie's neck and the more he tried to pull the can off the tighter it stuck. His face couldn't be seen and his voice sounded strangely hollow coming from inside the tin can.

"Quick!" called Uncle Wiggily to Buster. "Run to Mrs. Littletail and get her can opener." With the can opener Sammie's head was soon out of the can. Then he said he had an idea he could make a fine false face mask out of the empty can. But when he tried it on, before cutting eyes, a nose and mouth in it, he got it stuck on his head.

"Well, don't do it again," warned Mr. Longears as Sammie went to school with Buster and Duster. And if the rocking chair will stand up on its hind legs and bark like a gold fish, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the Bob Cat's surprise.

This is a day most auspicious for brain workers. Thinkers of every class are to come into larger fields of endeavor, it is indicated.

While there is not a promising aspect for new ventures under this behest of the stars, persistent effort applied to established enterprises should be exceedingly profitable.

There is a lucky sign for men and women who seek positions for which they have special qualifications. Applications under this rule should be successful.

Persons who exercise power over their fellow beings are most fortunate while this configuration prevails. Heads of business and leaders in politics should benefit.

CHILDISH FEARS USUALLY AROUSED BY PARENTS' THREATS

About the second or third year it is not unusual for almost any child to suddenly develop reasonless fears. These may take form chiefly because of the child's recognition of all the dangers surrounding him and also his appealing helplessness.

INSTILL COURAGE

We erase his fears by commonsense treatment of the child. We furnish stronger evidence of our love by showing him what he can do successfully. The fears most young children exhibit are discussed in my leaflet, "Commonplace Fears of Childhood." Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to this department for it.

When a child arrives at the age of five years and is afraid to go to bed alone, afraid to sleep in his own bed alone, is afraid of everything and anything with or without potential dangers, he is showing unnatural fears. We have to seek some flaw in his home treatment.

UNDERMINING CHILD'S TRUST

Parents are still guilty of trying to insure obedience by using threats. Some parents salve their conscience by saying, "Oh, he knows I don't mean it!" Perhaps the child does. But how frightfully we undermine the child's inborn confidence in us as good and loving parents and in society as a protective wing. The theatened child comes to believe, and rightly, that his parents and all society are "laying for him." Hasn't his mother told him that if he does this, if he does that, something disagreeable is going to happen to him? What an education for courage!

It isn't enough for parents to ask, "Why is my five-year-old afraid to sleep alone?" They should question themselves, listen to their own conversations, criticize the means by which they build up obedience. Perhaps they quarrel and threaten to leave each other, threaten to leave the child because he isn't good, threaten to get themselves another little boy, all those threats which build up fears, terrifying, and ineradicable. The child who is afraid to leave the comfort of their presence has in some way been deprived of his rightful feeling of security.

A Woman's Trouble

"ALL women at some period of their lives need a strengthening tonic. Read what Mrs. Elizabeth Sellers of 41 Bishop St., Toronto, says: "I suffered from woman's trouble following childbirth and my nerves were very bad. I had an awful pain on the top of my head and a dragging pain in my back. There were days that I just had to drag myself around. I did not rest well at night, could hardly eat a thing, and my complexion became very sallow. I used four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it put me right back on my feet. I felt better in every way, my appetite improved, the pain in my head and that heavy ache in my back disappeared."

Child of Eight Who Is Incorrigible at Home Needs Different Handling

DEAR MISS DIX—My daughter, eight and a half years old, seems to be steadily growing worse in behavior and is now almost incorrigible. She behaves well in school, but I cannot make her understand that she must obey her parents in the same way. I have thought of placing her in some institution of discipline. What would you advise doing? J. A. R.

Answer—Why, a little girl of eight and a half is still a baby, and the idea of putting her in any institution of discipline is horrible. It would brand her for life. Don't ever think of such a thing again and, above all, never let the child know that you ever contemplated taking such a step.

The only excuse for putting a child of that age in an institution would be if she had some serious mental disturbance, or if she was a hopeless idiot.

The fact that the child behaves well in school makes me feel sure that the trouble is in your home and in your method of handling her. So instead of trying to reform her, why not try to find out what is wrong with your methods? Perhaps you are too strict with her. Too arbitrary. Perhaps she is one of those high-mettled children who have to be driven with a light rein and who will always bolt if a heavy hand is laid on them. So instead of ordering your little girl to do this or that, why not try suggesting things to her? Why not use a little flattery instead of perpetual fault-finding and criticism?

Believe me, children are even more susceptible to praise and even more resent fault-finding than grown people do. I know a mother once who had literally worn herself out trying to make a small boy wash behind his ears and black his shoes and comb his hair and otherwise observe the niceties of civilized society. Finally she got tired of telling him what a pig he was and began telling him how handsome he was when his shoes were shined and his hair freshly combed and that the neighbors said he always looked such a little gentleman, and it turned him into a perfect example of what the well-dressed little boy is wearing. The hammer hadn't made a dent upon his consciousness, but the salve-spreader got in its great and perfect work.

Another reason why it is a great mistake continually to find fault with children is because they are peculiarly sensitive to suggestion. They try to live up to what you think they are. If you are always telling them they are little hellions, little hellions they will be to justify their reputation. Many a little boy is tough just because everybody talks about how tough he is. Many a little girl is a little devil because she feels that she attracts attention by being one.

Children love the limelight and there is no way you can discipline them quicker than by just turning it off them. So if your little girl is obstreperous and hard to get along with, and if she defies you and she knows that she has you worried and at your wits' end to know what to do with her, just realize that she is having the time of her life harassing you, but that her little play will fall perfectly flat if you will quit noticing it. Just let her alone. Let her have her own sweet way and reap the consequences of it for a while. Neglect her. There won't be a bit of fun in raising cain if she is left to do it by her lonesome.

As for obedience, it is desirable, but not all-important. Anyway, perhaps the reason she rebels at obedience is because you give the commands in an arbitrary way without explaining to her why you want her to do things. It is one thing to say "you can't do that because I say so," and another thing to explain that the reason she mustn't do so is because it will make her sick, or there is some other pleasanter plan in view. All of us, children and grown-ups, like our pills sugar-coated.

Evidently you and the little girl need to be parted for a while. Send her to a good summer camp. I have seen that work wonders in a child. And when she comes back treat her as if she was a grown-up. That will put it up to her to act like one. DOROTHY DIX.

* * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am planning to marry a man who is egotistical, self-centred, incapable of loving anyone but himself. I am doing this to get away from home. I have been brought up in an atmosphere of hate, bitterness, spitefulness and cruelty. I have tried to get away, but it is impossible, as my parents threaten to kill themselves if I leave them. Marriage is my only solution. Anything is preferable to living at home. UNHAPPY JANE.

Answer—You haven't tried being married to a selfish man, Jane. Nor a loveless marriage. When you do, you will find out that you jumped out of the frying pan into the fire.

Because you will have left hope behind. There is always a chance of getting away from your parents, but you are tied to your husband.

Anyway, it is easy to leave an unhappy home. All you have to do is to shut the door behind you, but getting out of a miserable marriage is a messy and expensive process. DOROTHY DIX.

Wonders of Nature

MAMMOTH CAVE

About eighty-five miles southwest of Louisville, Ky., is one of the famed wonders of nature—Mammoth Cave.

On Echo River in Mammoth Cave

Entering the cave, one may pass for mile after mile through passages cut ages ago by running water. This was a limestone region, and the water had to dissolve the rock before it could be carried away.

Mammoth cave does no possess so many stalactites as some other caverns, but it has plenty of other wonders to make up for that. Going from one passage to another, you will come upon rock forms which fill you with surprise. The side of one passage is known as the "Egyptian temple" because certain rocks form huge columns, thicker than a man is tall, which seems to hold up the roof.

At another place you may come into a hollow more than 300 feet deep, with the roof shaped like a dome; and in many spots you will find the stone of the walls carved by nature into the shape of flowers. These have been likened to lilies, asters, pansies and roses. The "Bottomless Pit" is a deep, dark hole beside a path; but of course it has a bottom.

There are pools and small lakes in Mammoth cave, with fresh, clear water. Streams run here and there, one being called Echo River. The air is pure and sweet to breathe. Winter and summer, the temperature remains just about fifty-four degrees above zero.

The main passage of Mammoth Cave is three miles long, but there are other passages which wind and twist in every direction. A person might travel more than fifty miles without going through the same passage twice.

One large hollow in the cave is known as the "Chief Temple." It is an oval room 541 feet long. At one time it was used as a council room by Indians. Remains of torches, arrows and other things used by the Indians who gathered there, have been found.

In the underground world live insects and fish without eyes. There are blind flies, blind crickets, blind spiders. The ancestors of these creatures could see, no doubt, but those which moved into the cave had to learn to do without seeing. In the course of time, all became blind. If brought to the sunny world, neither cricket nor fly nor spider can see its way around.

Japan Now Meeting Trade Resistance

Associated Press

Tokio, Oct. 26.—Finance Minister Koretio Takahashi announced the government was considering control of foreign trade to combat a world-wide tendency through tariffs to obstruct Japan's swelling exports.

Although exports for the first three-quarters of 1933 gained 44.5 per cent, according to government figures, M. Takahashi declared "the outlook does not permit optimism because many nations have raised or are contemplating tariff walls against Japan."

Mr. Bowser's Death Dwarfs All Other B.C. Topics To-day

Leaders of All Parties Suspend Political Activities Out of Respect to Former Premier and Courageous Fighter

Tubercular Trouble Developed After He Became Premier But He Went Through Campaign in 1916 Despite Lung Hemmorhages; Knew His Heart Was Weak But Made No Protest

The death of W. J. Bowser, K.C., at the peak of the British Columbia election campaign, in which he was one of the key figures, leading a third party group and himself running as candidate for both Victoria and Vancouver Centre seats, dwarfed all other topics of conversation to-day and blanketed political activities throughout the province.

All parties cancelled their meetings of yesterday evening, wherever possible, out of respect to the memory of one who had been a former Premier of British Columbia, and for one-third of a century, in or out of office, always a highly potent factor in the politics of the province.

Premier Tolmie at Burnaby and T. D. Pattullo, Liberal leader, at Salmon Arm, cancelled their meetings and issued orders for their followers to do likewise. The C.C.F. and Independents took similar action. In some cases campaign committee rooms are being closed until after Mr. Bowser's funeral on Saturday.

SACRIFICED STRENGTH IN CAMPAIGN

While Mr. Bowser had not enjoyed robust health since 1915, when he assumed office as Premier of the province, the end came unexpectedly. The energy he threw into his campaign depleted the reserve of strength of the man who during his whole life had to fight the handicap of a physical weakness.

A few days ago he suffered what he thought was an attack of indigestion or slight ptomaine poisoning. This has since been suspected by physicians who attended him in his dying hours as probably the first warning of a heart seizure.

On Monday Mr. Bowser was far from feeling well, but asked that nothing be said of his indisposition and he insisted on addressing a meeting that night at Moose Hall in Vancouver.

He struggled courageously through his address, although it was evident to close friends that he was quite ill. There was some heckling at the gathering and the old fire with which he was accustomed in other days to turn interruptions to his benefit was lacking. Tuesday he felt better and Tuesday night declared he was in fine fettle for the Non-partizan meeting at I.O.O.F. Hall, Vancouver. He arrived at the hall some time before he was to speak and spent the interval in a drive about the district with his old friends, James Armstrong and J. E. Merryfield. He passed an entertaining half-hour discussing pioneer days in the city with particular reference to Mount Pleasant district.

HEART SEIZURE

Those who attended the Mount Pleasant gathering found Mr. Bowser in better physical condition than he was the previous night and there were those flashes he had manifested in his opening meeting the previous Thursday in Victoria of his old form as a spirited speaker, keen to press home his arguments. Following the meeting he adjourned to Hotel Vancouver with a few old-time friends and discussed the campaign for a half hour before retiring for the night.

At 1.30 a.m. his niece, Miss Gladys Irving, who has resided with him at Victoria, and who accompanied him on his tour, heard Mr. Bowser calling her. He complained of an attack of indigestion and asked Miss Irving to call medical aid. Dr. Frank P. Patterson at once sensed a heart seizure and called in Dr. Bagnall. Later, Dr. Gillies and Dr. Lyall Hodgins were summoned.

The patient remained conscious until near daybreak yesterday, and despite his acute suffering talked cheerfully, among other things speaking of the campaign in which he was engaged.

At 7 o'clock it was not thought Mr. Bowser would live longer than an hour, but the spirit and constitution which had carried him through tubercular trouble in former years fought tenaciously, and it was not until about 1.40 that he breathed his last.

Mr. Bowser's best friends say he died as he would wished to have died—in harness.

FOUGHT HIS INFIRMITY

He was not a man that gave way to physical handicap. Shortly after he assumed the premiership he had serious tubercular trouble and had to take a three-months' rest at Kamloops. He entered the previous provincial general election campaign in very indifferent health. During the height of the campaign he suffered lung hemmorhages. Newspaper men who accompanied him in that campaign have memories of Mr. Bowser's brave fight against ill-health in that contest. A keen fighter, he gave little quarter and asked no sympathy. He never once mentioned his health during the campaign and quickly dismissed any conversation relating to it.

Before starting the present campaign he stated he felt sufficiently strong to go through with it. On one or two occasions he remarked, as if he had a premonition of his end, "as long as the heart stands it, I will be all right."

CULTURED, PERFECT HOST

Since his retirement in 1926 from the front row on the political stage until he stepped into the limelight at the head of a new movement this last summer, the man who for more than two decades had been alternately feared and admired as "the little Napoleon of B.C. politics," lived the life of a retired gentleman at his beautiful residence, "Buncrana," with its hillside gardens on Rockland Avenue. There to all he was the cultured, perfect host. He read widely of biography and history. Almost every morning, except when he was away on a trip, he would come down town and drop into the Union Club for lunch and talk over developments with old friends and former foes. One of those with whom he most enjoyed the luncheon hour at the club was J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., who was often here when the Court of Appeal was in session. The careers of the two had in many ways paralleled. Both had come from the Maritimes to Vancouver about the same time, had entered law and politics with a comparable degree of success, and had both been Attorney-General of B.C. They had run against each other in Vancouver and on the public platforms, and later in the House each had been the particular target of the other. But during the last few years, the two gladiators, removed from the heat of battle, could meet and talk freely and frankly and exchange confidences.

Three years ago, Mr. Bowser, accompanied by his niece, Miss Gladys Irving, who lived with him here and was with him when he died in Vancouver yesterday, took a winter cruise in the Mediterranean. They visited the chief historic spots and upon their return Mr. Bowser delivered a number of private talks on the tour. He was a thirty-third degree Mason, and upon his return from that trip the members of that order entertained him as their speaking guest.

AGAIN A STORM CENTRE

His retirement from the active scene, however, did not exclude from the limelight the man who for years had been a political storm centre. One of the features of politics in B.C. during these last few years has been the series of visits made to "Buncrana" by political leaders from every part of the province who felt they still had an unbroken personal attachment to Mr. Bowser as their old chief. There at his home there developed an informal political court where affairs were dissected. As dissatisfaction on the part of Conservatives with the Tolmie government increased, so the political visitors to the Bowser home, and letters and long-distance telephone calls increased. Out of all this arose the decision which brought Mr. Bowser back into the political arena and the formation of a Non-Partizan Group which he was to lead.

LEAVES STRONG IMPRESSION

While a resident of Victoria for over twenty years, Vancouver held a warm spot in his heart. On his frequent visits to that city there was nothing he liked better than to spend an evening with friends of pioneer days' reminiscing. He had the faculty of creating an unusual loyalty among his friends and in his earlier days in political life of arousing the bitterest opposition. It was characteristic of him that no matter how hard his opponents hit or at times maligned him he appeared to bear no resentment. He took it as all part of the game.

Of some of his hardest hitting political opponents he had a great admiration. He wrote the late Premier John Oliver a letter full of kindest sympathy and sincere admiration a few days before the latter died.

Like most successful men in public life, Mr. Bowser had supreme confidence in his own ability. No matter how strong the tide was against him in any of the numerous political contests in which he took part he was always sanguine of success and had little patience with those of his friends who might suggest that things were not going as well as they might.

He was a man of few hobbies and almost totally devoted his time, apart from working among his flowers in his garden here, to reading and discussing public affairs. His countenance, determined, alert, was an index to his character. He held decided opinions, was ambitious and a fighter who never knew when he was licked. Like his brilliant associate in the first Conservative government of British Columbia, Sir Richard McBride, he left a strong impression on the political life of the province.

WHY WAS MRS. LEWIS REJECTED?

but now she has no more to live on than the rest of us, if as much, for she is always giving somebody something. Let me tell you how we first made her acquaintance. First we read a letter from her in the paper and saw an announcement of a meeting of the Women's Movement and my husband said I had better go. There were a lot of women there and she told us the women could clean up politics in British Columbia if we all got together and began in our own home and street. I have never forgotten that bit because my next-door neighbor, whose husband has a good job, came in next day with a piece of veal, and she has lived next door to me for three years and never called before. That was item one.

Then we were sorry to read that Mrs. Lewis had been elected president of the C.C.F. in Saanich. Then my husband was taken ill with rheumatic fever and on account of leaving the children neither of us could get to any C.C.F. meetings, but one wet, dark night along comes Mrs. Lewis and planks down a bag of sugar on the table to make jam. Then she bathed the baby which was teething and very fretful, then she bathed my husband and fixed him up fine, then she read the C.C.F. paper to us, and walked home a mile and more. The next day but one, a lady came along in a car, with beef tea and a wine jelly, and lovely woollies for the baby. Wouldn't we, Mr. Working Man, vote for her if we only had the chance? What the C.C.F. needs is Gospel preaching, according to the papers. We want to know the truth about this "Mr. Christ" business before we vote C.C.F. If they could have a meeting in or near McKenzie School and have Mr. Connell and Mrs. Lewis speak, we would be glad to have things cleared up.

We want to know the truth about why she was thrown out of the C.C.F. The men tell my husband it was the Communists who threw her out. What were the head ones doing to let this riff-raff throw her out? Somebody must be backing them or they could not do it.

A WORKINGMAN'S WIFE.

ECONOMIC NECESSITY

To the Editor:—To get a proper perspective on the present, one has to look back a bit.

We have had three groups of politicians in the last thirty years; the first and third groups Conservative, the second Liberal. A Montreal paper published the Conservative platform of that period and remarked: "So this is Conservatism in British Columbia; why, they are more radical than the Social Democrats of Germany." They got in, and their motto was "to keep in," and they gave "the speculator his chance." He took it, and grabbed millions of acres of land and untold millions worth of timber, etc. That Conservative (?) government also sunk us in debt with crazy railroad-building schemes, and forgot all about their platform.

All this the Liberals denounced and in 1916 swept the Conservatives out of power. The Liberal platform (I have copies of it) rightly understood, was more radical than the C.C.F. platform of to-day. Did they proceed with proper and remedial legislation? Only in the most perfunctory and timid way. And the power behind the throne actually buffaloed them into repealing the tax on the unearned increment the session after they had enacted it.

They made statutory provision for bonusing an iron industry, robbing the small industries of a few millions to set up a big industry, and spent millions on unsound land-settlement schemes for which they had no mandate, and many more millions on the P.G.E. before abandoning it without head or tail, beginning or end.

They gave us an unworkable Initiative and Referendum Act. And they, too, forgot all about their platform.

In 1928 the Tolmie Conservatives swept them out. Other old-liners try to put the responsibility for present conditions on the good doctor, but he is only a piker in "practical politics" compared with his predecessors in office.

Are the myrmidons of monopoly afraid that the C.C.F. Party will also forget their platform? No! They are afraid that it was in no way intended for sucker-bait but will be strictly lived up to.

We face a great crisis. As economic necessity compelled the Tory Party in the Old Country to repeal the Corn Laws, so economic necessity will shortly compel whatever party is in office here to socialize social values.

That awesome committee of thirteen, tenanting some noisome warren in Vancouver; in nightly league with Moscow and "Auld Hornie"; endowed with the infernal prerogative of weeding out anti-Satanic C.C.F. candidates, is what the late Captain Grose would have termed "A Pretty Tale."

ALEXANDER HAMILTON.
1035 Fairfield Road, Victoria, October 23, 1933.

Seattle, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Ernest L. Chown, thirty-six, was killed yesterday evening by a hit-and-run driver, raising the automobile death toll in King County this year to 108. The body was found surrounded by bits of broken windshield glass, and police broadcast a general alarm for a driver with a broken windshield.

COLUMBIA SHOWS ADVENTURE FILM

George Vanderbilt plays the leading role in one of the most unusual pictures to come to the screen. It is an amazing record of sensational adventures with man-eating monsters of the South Seas. The high lights of the picture are the harpooning of a giant ray, twenty-five feet across and weighing 2,000 pounds, and a fight to death between a tiger shark and a barracuda.

Also being shown is Edmund Lowe in "Her Bodyguard."

ITO SINGS AS WELL AS DANCES

In Japan, the basis of all dramatic art, is singing and dancing. Michio Ito, coming to the Royal Victoria Theatre next Monday, tells of singing with Tamaki Miura in a Japanese opera in the Imperial Theatre in Tokio. After receiving his earliest dance training in his native land he went abroad and began a series of studies of the civilizations and arts of other countries.

Ito built up his own dance creations from all that he had absorbed, infusing them with the depth and sincerity of the true artist.

COMING TO CAPITOL

Conrad Veidt, Leslie Fenton and Jill Esmond have the leading roles in "P.P.1," the Fox presentation of the new Erich Pommer production, starting on Saturday at the Capitol Theatre. The film was directed by Karl Hartl from the original story by Walter Reisch and Kurt Siodmak.

"P.P.1" is the abbreviation for "Floating Platform One," an artificial island in the mid-Atlantic, around which the romance of a trans-ocean aviator revolves.

CAPITOL THEATRE

It is generally supposed that film acting is a job for the young. "Orders is Orders," the latest production from the Gaumont-British Studios, now showing at the Capitol Theatre, proves this to be wrong, for Cyril Maude, the veteran actor, who retired from the stage years ago, returns to play a role that leaves the acting of the youngsters far behind.

For fifty years a stage favorite and the creator of such roles as Grumpy, in which he also made his screen debut, Cyril Maude puts over an amazing performance as the colonel in "Orders is Orders," a brilliant comedy based on the stage play.

ELISSA LANDI AT PLAYHOUSE

"I Loved You Wednesday," the Fox romance from the successful stage play of the same name, proves itself a truly satisfying piece of entertainment. As it was unfolded from the screen of the Playhouse Theatre yesterday, it showed itself to be one of those all-too-rare instances in motion pictures where all elements combine for happy results.

With Warner Baxter, Elissa Landi, Victor Jory, Miriam Jordan and Laura Hope Crews in the cast, there is an array of actors who know their business in every stage of the cinematic art. The play from which the film is adapted was hailed as a piece of writing with the markings of brilliance. The direction of Henry King, who has such other successes as "State Fair" to his credit, is superb.

Irene Dunne in "The Silver Cord" is also on the programme.

DOMINION THEATRE

From the vivid pen of Damon Runyon, "Lady for a Day" which is showing at the Dominion Theatre all this week first appeared as a magazine story under the title of "Madame La Gimp."

The story opens in Times Square, New York, where Apple Annie vends her wares to support a daughter in Europe. Pretending to her daughter that she is a society matron, Annie gets into difficulties when her daughter writes that she will visit home with her fiance and father who intends to check up on the family pedigree.

May Robson, the grand old lady of the American stage attains her greatest success in fifty years of trouping as the apple vendor in "Lady for a Day."

DEATH CAUSED BY OWN HAND

Coroner's Jury Decides Passing of H. M. Lewis Suicide

Harold M. Lewis took his own life in a fit of despondency at his home, 261 King George Terrace, last Tuesday, a coroner's jury this morning decided after hearing the evidence at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Parlors.

He was found by his stepson in bed with cuts on the throat and wrists. Dr. C. Watson was called and had him removed to hospital but he died before a blood transfusion could be made.

A bloodstained razor was found on a table beside the head of the bed.

Dr. Watson testified that Mr. Lewis had taken paraldehyde, a hypnotic drug, to combat insomnia and that this might have made him mentally depressed.

Reginald Genn, an uncle, stated Mr. Lewis had been distressed mentally for the last two months over financial matters. He was physically run down and had a blank stare in his eyes. Mr. Genn said he was worrying about funds for completion of his house.

The jury deliberated only a short while before returning the verdict.

Mr. Band, who is one of the big milling men of the country, started business in 1885 with James Carruthers and Company, the well-known grain export merchants and had charge of the Toronto office up to 1914 when he went to New York and remained there until 1919, when he returned to Toronto.

He is president of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company Ltd., and the Campbell Milling Company Ltd., vice-president of the Canada Bread Company Ltd. and the Dominion Bakeries Ltd., and member of the Toronto Board of Trade.

MORE TRIBUTES TO W. J. BOWSER

John Hart, Who Sat With Him in House, Says Gap Will Be Hard to Fill

John Hart, former Minister of Finance for British Columbia and one of the Liberal candidates in Victoria, paid the following tribute to W. J. Bowser, K.C., this morning:

"The news of the passing of Mr. Bowser came as a shock to me because it was my privilege to sit in the Legislature with him for several years, and during that time I came to regard him as a warm personal friend, although, of course, we differed on many matters of public policy. At all times in debate he was fearless, took hard verbal knocks and gave as good in return, but on no occasion in my experience did he allow these differences of opinion to mar his broad and friendly outlook. Mr. Bowser was an asset to the public life of this province. His passing will leave a gap that will not be easy to fill."

Herbert Anscomb, one of the Independent candidates in Victoria, said:

"It was with profound regret that I learned yesterday of the sudden death of Mr. Bowser, the former leader of the Conservative Party in the province. A man possessed of great talent and ability, he gave freely of his time and knowledge to his adopted province during his long residence here. I remember him well over twenty years ago when I first came to B.C. at a time when he was at the zenith of his power, politically. He was undoubtedly an able administrator and but for his zeal for politics, which without doubt causes a heavy strain on public men, he might have been with us yet. He will be missed by a large circle of his old acquaintances and friends."

The Presbyterial of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society will meet to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Andrew's Church.

Efforts To Unite Non-Partizan and Unionists Underway

"Death Changes All," Says Dr. Alfred Thompson, Vancouver, Who Calls Meeting

Conferences Taking Place To-day; Both Sides Anxious For Understanding

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—Rapprochement between the main sections of the Non-Party Independents in a union by which they will fight out the last hectic days of the present provincial political campaign is considered fairly certain by men who have taken part in quickly-moving events since the death of W. J. Bowser, K.C. Within the next twenty-four hours leaders in the Non-Partizan Group, of which Mr. Bowser was a moving force, and the Tolmie-Unionists, as well as a number of Vancouver Conservatives who have held more or less aloof from the fray to date, will meet with the hope of finding common ground on which to unite.

Separate deliberations by both these groups following Mr. Bowser's sudden death at noon yesterday led each of them to seek the same mediator—Dr. Alfred Thompson, an old friend of both Mr. Bowser and Premier Tolmie.

Dr. Thompson confirmed the fact that he had been approached by both groups and at his individual responsibility has called a conference.

"Death changes all," declared Dr. Thompson, in confirming his part in the negotiations.

"The tragedy of Mr. Bowser's death was a shock to both friend and foe. He had played such a prominent part in public affairs that he had many strong friends and many strong enemies. But his death ends the feud between himself and Dr. Tolmie.

TIME TO GET TOGETHER

"This being so, surely it is time for all good citizens to get together and put the affairs of this province first and foremost, above any and every personality.

"Evidence of this spirit is demonstrated in the fact that both factions have approached me within the past twenty-four hours. They did this, I presume, because they knew I was an old friend of both Mr. Bowser and the Premier.

"I feel that there can not be a better show of regard for the late leader than the meeting which I am calling to bring about peace and understanding. We propose to discuss ways and means of uniting the followers of both these men. Certainly no better tribute could be paid the memory of Mr. Bowser.

"I wish to make it clear that in making this move I am acting absolutely on my own initiative and independent of any political organization."

Dr. Thompson's announcement came on the heels of conferences which took place Wednesday night and this morning. Premier Tolmie was in Vancouver last night, having left Victoria to make an address here before he heard of Mr. Bowser's death. It is not known what part, if any, he took in the deliberations. Dr. Thompson stated that the movement is being backed heartily by leaders of both factions and also by men who have not taken an active part in the campaign to date.

Those taking part in the move toward amity within the party include some candidates now standing in the interests of both factions. Whether success of the move will mean withdrawals of some candidates is not known. Deliberations have been more along the line of a broad understanding rather than of details, it is understood.

Some of those who replied are out of work. Others have jobs. They are of varying ages, but each expresses hope that he will be the suitable mate for the woman in question. Some of the letters were addressed to "The Lady Who Wants a Husband."

The mayor is forwarding all queries to the woman, who will arrange her own meetings and then make her choice.

REQUEST HEARING ON RELIEF PLEA

A request that the Relief Conference Committee that its delegation have an interview with the City Council Monday evening to ask for a 25 per cent increase in relief allowances will be met with a counter proposal by the city that the interview be arranged for to-morrow afternoon at the public works committee meeting.

The council on Monday night decided to inform the group that delegations are not received at the regular council sessions, but this morning a reply was received demanding an interview next Monday, because the arrangements had been made to this end.

Mayor Leeming, however, decided to reaffirm the council's opinion, but pointed out that an opportunity would be provided for the delegation to appear to-morrow afternoon.

SURVEY WORK IS GREAT AID

H. D. Parizeau Tells Rotarians of Importance of Federal Operations

The value and importance of survey work to shipping, and lumbering, mining and tourist industries of British Columbia and the country generally was sketched by H. D. Parizeau, chief hydrographer for the Canadian Government, of the survey boat, Wm. J. Stewart, in a talk given to the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

The year 1933, Mr. Parizeau said, was the golden anniversary of Canadian government survey work, the initial undertaking being ordered following the disaster which claimed ninety-eight lives when the Ss. Asia foundered in Georgian Bay in the Great Lakes. This happened on September 14, 1882, and only two of the hundred persons aboard, survived.

Prior to this date all work in this connection in Canada had been performed by the British admiralty, but the federal authorities felt that a thorough survey of the Great Lakes was necessary if shipping traffic was to be safely guarded.

The first Canadian survey, that of the Great Lakes, was commenced in 1883 with a British officer in charge, operating a boat supplied by the Canadian authorities. When the work was commenced, the officer had made an estimate that it would take five years. In 1893 he resigned and the work was not completed. It was continued from 1904 to 1913 by his successor and on the latter date was still unfinished. Mr. Parizeau took over in 1913 and to-day it was still uncompleted.

STILL INCOMPLETE

Thus, after forty years of practically continuous survey, including five years in which two boats had been used, the Great Lakes were still unsurveyed in part. From this it was apparent that an estimate of survey work was hard to give, the speaker commented.

The first survey on the West Coast was called for shortly after the C.P.R. commenced operating out here and one of the passenger steamers struck. This occurred in 1891 and William J. Stewart, the chief hydrographer at that time, came out to take charge.

Survey work had at first been carried out under several departments, including railways, public works and marine, he stated, but now it was all performed under the marine department. Mr. Parizeau dealt with a number of the earlier surveys in Canada, indicating the wide scope of the work.

NEW BOAT NEEDED

When the D.G.S. Lillooet was sent to British Columbia, it was originally intended for work on the inside passages, the speaker stated, and for thirteen years it was necessary to do what outside was done here, with it. After this time, however, the government became convinced of the need for a deep-sea ship and chartered the Wm. J. Stewart for the West Coast last year.

Mr. Parizeau gave a most interesting description of hydrographical work, dealing first with technical details, then explaining the assistance which had been rendered by aerial photography which assisted materially in showing the topography of the land on the charts.

He told sounding were taken with small boats in shallow water and with the larger ship in deeper channels. The British Columbia Coast was treacherous, he stated, because of its irregular bottom. It was possible for a ship steaming along comfortably in 200 or 300 feet of water to suddenly strike a rock that was very close to the surface, he said.

Mr. Parizeau then told of the sweep system, by which men engaged in surveying are able to determine the nature of the bottom. He explained how a wire line, which sometimes extended over a five-mile area, was towed along by two launches at varying depths, and when it struck a rock, soundings were taken to determine the shallowness of the water.

AIDS FISHING

In conclusion, he referred to the value of survey work as an aid to fishing. During a season, he stated, some of the coast fishermen would record the loss of two or three nets in a season because they had struck an uncharted rock. These nets cost from $3,000 to $5,000, and thus if the surveyors could prevent such an occurrence they were rendering a great service to this industry.

The tourist industry was also aided by the supplying of charts showing the inner channels, while numerous harbors were charted for the benefit of the mining and lumber industries.

It was the ultimate aim of the hydrographical survey to have a chart of the British Columbia coast from Victoria to Prince Rupert, showing all dangers in all channels for boats of every size, he said.

Alderman Walter Luney moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. J. Percy Watson introduced him.

JUDGE AWARDS JEAN BOWERS $5

Jean Bowers was awarded $5 damages in her $1,000 suit against John Jardine of Esquimalt, for invading her Anson Street home and assaulting her, by the judgment handed down to-day by Judge Lampman, following the trial in which H. A. Maclean, K.C., defended Mr. Jardine and R. C. Lowe was counsel for Mrs. Bowers.

"The plaintiff is obviously a powerful, young woman—although she did not want to disclose her age—weighs 155 pounds and there can be no doubt that in a physical encounter she can use her powers to good effect," said the judge. "The defendant is an old man in his seventy-ninth year and from his attitude as a witness I have no doubt that when worked up a bit his tongue would run away with him and he would do things that would be a severe strain on his heart which is not in a good state. However, he should not be depressed about his heart as he came through the battle pretty well for an old man matched against a pretty, lively opponent of the opposite sex."

The judge pointed out that the two had been friends, but as a result of the love affair of a young couple Mrs. Bowers had become "cross at Jardine" and he had become "terribly vexed" over what he believed she had said about him being an old reprobate." He went to her house to correct her from saying that he "had stolen granite."

As to who began the laying on of hands, I am unable to say and as to the principal part of the plaintiff's case I am of the opinion that she must fail. But I think she must succeed in one part—that is, in reference to the interference with her when she tried at first to telephone the defendant's house. In regard to this she would be entitled to exemplary damages if it were not for the fact that he acted under great provocation. His wife is old and was not well and he did not want her to get such a shock as he felt she would get if the plaintiff telephoned her. The plaintiff knew all this and, although he asked her not to do so, she persisted and telephoned. She had had time to cool off a bit and her act was heartless. Nothing but spite prompted her to telephone and she is entitled to only small damages. I fix the amount at $5," the judgment concludes.

City police to-day instituted a search for J. Stephenson, who disappeared from the Salvation Army Hostel on October 23 and left two notes behind in his room. He is described as sixty years of age, weighing about 130 pounds, slim build with greying hair.

CLAIM FEES ARE UNJUST

Claiming inequity under the present system, delegates from the Saanich Ward Two Non-Political Ratepayers' Association yesterday evening advocated a change in the high school fee system enforced by the Saanich School Board.

The delegates, C. H. Underwood and E. Warren set forth their claims on which they based their opinion that the system was unjust but offered no suggestions for the alleviation of the fees, other than their abolition.

They were told by the chairman of the board, however, that the system was instituted by a majority ruling of the board and until such time as that majority saw fit to alter its attitude, the scheme would remain in effect.

URGES TAX BE PAID EARLY

With only four days remaining for registration of voters on the civic list, N. H. Lord, city poll tax collector, in an announcement this morning drew attention to the fact that those who have not already paid poll and road taxes should do so before the end of the month in order that they may make declarations to register.

Mr. Lord pointed out that the fees would be collected before the end of the year in any case and that it was to the advantage of those who are liable to pay before the end of this month so that they may put their franchise in order.

All persons over twenty-one years of age who do not own property or pay business licenses and have no claim for exemption, are liable to the tax.

Registration of voters is speeding up in the city clerk's office as the closing time approaches and in view of the unusual interest taken in elections in these times, a large list is anticipated.

C. S. Henley and Major A. G. Piddington were unanimously approved as members of the Rotary Club at the luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day. Clarence Case was introduced by Arthur Brown as a new member.

The Douglas Street Baptist Young People's Society will hold a Hallowe'en Social to-morrow evening at 7.30, at the church. All members are requested to wear masquerade costume, Hallowe'en or otherwise, if possible.

Veteran Connell Steps Out After Brilliant Hockey Record

* * *

One of Outstanding Personalities in National Hockey League

* * *

Tilden Has Finally Got Pro Tennis Players Soundly Established

AFTER a colorful career in the National Hockey League, Alex. Connell, veteran goalie of the Ottawa Senators, has stepped out of the picture unless called on for an emergency role to relieve. Thus the grand old man steps out from between the posts he has adorned for many years, giving way to youthful Billy Beveridge. Connell who is secretary of the Ottawa Fire Department is really one player who can pass up hockey for business as he has been many years with his department.

* * *

Connell was always among the front rank of goal tenders, as good as the best. On Montreal ice he was particularly sensational, and always had a hankering to play with a Montreal club. His greatest exhibitions, in fact one of the finest displays of goal tending ever seen in major hockey, was shown in the final game of the series two years ago between Montreal Maroons and Detroit Red Wings. Maroons had played to a tie with the Wings in the opening game at Detroit. Maroons had all the advantage in their favor but Connell, Detroit goalie, had other ideas. He batted out sixty shots, often kicking out two and three in a row. Time after time he was given an ovation. Finally a soft shot rolled off his chest into the net, giving Maroons the game, they would have won easily, had he not been so sensational.

* * *

Several years ago he earned an enviable shutout record, once going six games in a row without being scored on. Even yet, Connell is a smart goalie. While he may be seen from time to time in his old position it is apparent he has bid goodbye to the game. It is a great loss to hockey as he was one of its outstanding personalities. Connell had a keen sense of humor which is a much needed quality in hockey where some very grim ideas prevail at times among players and magnates. While with Ottawa Connell and Frank Clancy were known as the Damon and Pythias of hockey. They played together from boyhood in their respective positions.

Henri Cochet and Ellsworth Vines have turned pro in the most striking tennis shake-up since the palmy days of the C. C. Pyle Grand and Glittering Tour. It will not be surprising to see a number of others whose names have been in the headlines forsake the so-called simon-pure ranks. Whether or not the game's ruling powers yield to the inevitable and establish open championships, as in golf, it is certain that the professionals will be better established, better organized and more in demand. Behind it all is William Tilden, still the most colorful figure in tennis and possibly the world's greatest match player at the age of forty. In the three years since he turned professional, after ten years of top flight amateur and Davis Cup competition, Tilden has battled hard and persistently to build up the play-for-pay brigade.

* * *

Tilden regards his forthcoming match with Vines, sceduled January 10 in Madison Square Garden, as the forerunned of national tour as a "tennis natural." It will be interesting and it should be profitable but it will take considerable ballyhoo to offset the effect of the Californian's downfall along all major fronts in the 1933 campaign.

Vines was urged by Tilden to turn pro after he swept all the big tennis tournaments in 1932.

Ellsworth was then at the peak and Big Bill argued with him that he couldn't repeat, that then was the time to "cash in," but the Californian was supremely confident of his ability to beat everyone in sight and help bring back the Davis Cup.

The only player Vines really had much respect for was Cochet," Tilden told me, "and he believed he could 'take' Henri again. Of course his judgment was not seasoned but I do not blame him entirely for his failures this year. He was harassed, given too much advice, and too much tennis. No youngster could stand all the pressure he was under for nearly a year."

* * *

"Vines," continued Tilden, "should be even better as a pro than he was at the top of the amateurs in 1931 and 1932. He will regain his confidence, along with his strokes, and he won't have to worry about so many side issues.

"With Vines and Cochet in the professional field now, the balance of tennis playing power has shifted. Take these two, with players like Nusslein, Plaa, Kozeluh, Richards, Bruce Barnes and myself, and where will you find any group of amateurs able to cope with them on the courts."

Toronto, Oct. 26.—When you have a team that has proven itself over a two-year stretch to be as good as they come, then it's in order to stand pat. When it's almost as good as they come, a lot of juggling is the order. The juggling of Toronto Maple Leafs has shaken scarcely at all the team that won the Stanley Cup in 1932 and lost it in the finals last spring to the Rangers.

Conny Smythe, more satisfied than most National Hockey League chiefs, has added a high-scoring winger to his fleet of forwards and replaced Lorne Chabot, veteran goaltender, with the ever more time-tried George Hainsworth. Chabot joined Montreal Canadiens in exchange for the easy-going puck-blocker from Kitchener.

The defences proved strong enough through last season to suit Smythe, for in front of Hainsworth will be King Clancy, Alex Levinsky, Happy Day and Red Horner, with a remote possibility Freddy Robertson or Ace Hollett, both with Syracuse in the International League, will get some N.H.L. experience.

NO STRENGTHENING NEEDED

As long as Clancy, offensive firebrand, and Day, just as effective on the attack as the King, play up to last season's form, there is no need for rearguard reinforcement. Horner and Levinsky are among the heaviest body-checkers in the circuit. Working out with Leafs at Kitchener, Robertson and Hollett have impressed observers with their ability, but there would seem to be no opening for defencemen on Toronto roster.

Around Hec Kilrea, blonde left-winger, secured from Ottawa Senators for Bob Gracie and a goodly amount of cash, Coach Dick Irvin is busy building a new "power line." It is to have Kilrea on the left flank, Bill Thoms at centre and Ace Bailey at right wing. One of the best of last season's rookies, Thoms is regarded as one of the very best centres in the N.H.L. after only a few months under the big roof.

Signing two days ago of Charlie Conacher, husky right-winger, ended worry over the "kid" line. Conacher, Joe Primeau and Harvey Jackson, who accumulated more scoring points than any other trio in the league in the last three years, will again pace the Leaf attack.

KEEN BATTLE

A five-way battle is underway at Kitchener for places on number three front line between Ken Doraty, Andy Blair, Harold Cotton, Charlie Sands and Buzz Boll. Sands, brought up from Syracuse late last season and a hero of the Boston-Leaf playoff series, is a promising candidate for a right-wing berth. Boll has played brilliantly in practice and Doraty, Blair and Cotton seem to have slipped not at all.

The Smythe-Irvin men, reported to be in better shape for the November 9 opening than a year ago, are scheduled to play several exhbtition games before they face Boston Bruins here in the first N.H.L. game. Performances of doubtful starters in these games will decide who stays up and who doesn't

ICE GOSSIP

When Toronto Maple Leaf players are penalized this season Coach Dick Irvin won't have to depend entirely on "Hairbreadth Harold" Cotton and "Ace" Bailey to keep the puck out of the Leaf end of the rink until his team is back to full strength. For Irvin is drilling most of his staff of forwards in the fine art of "ragging," a nicety of hockey business at which few players are adept.

Last season Cotton and Bailey carried much of the load of killing time and when Bailey was injured Cotton was the man of the moment. A few times Cotton was the player penalized and then it was just too bad. Irvin plans to have others of his forwards perfect themselves in the manoeuvre, so no matter who is waved to the bench he will still have players capable of fighting off opposing forwards

* * *

A feature of Leaf workouts at Kitchener has been the fine defensive work Freddy Robertson, up from Syracuse, has displayed. "Happy" Day and "Red" Horner have been showing plenty of power, but Robertson has been as good as any of the Leaf regular defencemen in practice.

* * *

Irvin is still not decided on the make-up of his third line. He tried out all sorts of combinations yesterday. Sands was working with Boll and Cotton; Doraty with Boll and Cotton and Boll with Doraty and Blair.

* * *

The Leaf workout yesterday was featured by the return to form of "King" Clancy and Alex Levinsky. Both showed a great deal more power than they have at any previous workout

* * *

Coach Joe Simpson is making sure he won't mix up his forward lines. Simpson, training for Oshawa, has differently colored sweaters for his three front lines and can change them by shouting "blues off," "reds on."

Simpson is particularly pleased with the showing of his "kid" front line of Fred Hergert, Dave Schriner and L. Jackson. "Bullet Joe" claims the trio should be regulars before the close of the season.

* * *

Ottawa Senators strengthened their staff yesterday with Albert Leduc, Canadien defenceman, only to lose Nick Wasnie through injury. He will be out of the game for several days.

TWO HORSES ARE SPONGED

Practice Carried Out at Empire City Track According to Stewards

New York, Oct. 26.—Practice of sponging race horses, which created a furore here recently in the case of Sweeping Light, has cropped up again at the Empire City track. Stewards disclosed yesterday Playing On, owned by Mrs. S. H. Fairbanks, and Orliey, had been sponged prior to running in the third race at Empire City last Saturday.

Both horses were quoted at short prices in the betting. Playing On finished a close second in the race and Orliey was fourth.

Discovery sponges had been inserted in the horses' nostrils was made by the trainers Tuesday and was confirmed yesterday by Dr. C. R. Richards, veterinary adviser to the stewards.

LAIRD WATT AND PARTNER VICTORS

The match was to have been played at Kingston, Ont., last Saturday, winding up the annual intercollegiate competition, but was delayed by rain and was run off yesterday at the Montreal Indoor Tennis Club, the only courts here not closed for the winter.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 26.—Gus Sonnenberg, 210, took two straight falls from Ed. McCorkin, 205, Canada, to win the feature match of a wrestling card here yesterday evening.

Quebec Goes After Roving Ice Players

Montreal, Oct. 26.—Hockey players registered with the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association last season who have changed residence later than January 1, 1933, or intend to change residence before the coming championship season, will not be granted transfers from the Q.A.H.A. unless it is found the change of address was not for hockey purposes alone, President Alcide Gagnon of the Q.A.H.A. stated here yesterday.

ABE ELIOWITZ MAY NOT LOSE AMATEUR STANDING

J. H. Crocker, President of Amateur Athletic Union, Corrects Reports Regarding Position of Ottawa's Star Canadian Football Player

London, Ont., Oct. 26.—J. H. Crocker, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, yesterday evening corrected published reports the A.A.U. would recall the amateur card of Abe Eliowitz of Ottawa if it was established he had played semi-professional baseball.

"Amateurs in Michigan may be given cards if the governing body believe they remained amateur though mingling with professionals in semi-professional ball, and if they so report we can only accept Eliowitz," he said.

"We are forced to accept amateur cards from the United States on that basis, just as we would be forced to accept assurances from the interprovincial union it was a governing body of rugby and its players are living up to the amateur rules."

Charges have been made against Eliowitz to the effect he played semi-professional baseball with a Detroit club.

Marc Catton Wins Billiard Play-off

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—Marc Catton, Alameda, won the western sectional three-cushion billiard tournament and the right to play in the national championship in Philadelphia in January here yesterday evening. Catton gained the western title in winning his fourth straight game, defeating Johnny Fitzpatrick, Seattle, 50 to 39, in forty-five minutes.

Fitzpatrick, who won two and lost two games in the tournament, met Harold Engle, Hollywood, to-day for second place honors.

V.A.C. Walk Over New Westminster In Big Four Clash

Vancouver Gridders Chalk Up 19 to 5 Victory on Mud-soaked Field

Victors Get Over For Three Touchdowns; Rain Hampers Royals' Air Attack

Vancouver, Oct. 26—Vancouver Athletic Club handed New Westminster a 19 to 5 beating in a big four Canadian Football League game here yesterday evening.

Playing on a mud-soaked gridiron in a heavy rain, V.A.C. steamrollered their way to three touchdowns, one of which was converted, and added a safety touch and a deadline kick for good measure.

Westminster, with their principal offensive weapon, the forward pass, practically useless in the rain, scored two deadline points and a field goal.

Vacs chalked up their first score before the game was two minutes old when May, receiving the kickoff, fumbled behind his own line. Swanson attempted to pass the ball out, but Vacs broke through for a safety touch. A few minutes later Chodat crashed through the Royals' line for a touchdown which Downie converted.

Trasolini kicked to the deadline for Westminster's first point, halfway through the quarter.

STEWART GOES OVER

Just before the quarter ended Stewart skirted right end for fifteen yards to mark up another major score for Vacs, which went unconverted.

Westminster opened the second quarter with another deadline kick by Trasolini. The green and white squad came back with a deadline kick, followed by a touchdown by Dalby, who slipped through ten yards on a fake kick formation. The touchdown was not converted.

Both squads failed to score in the third quarter, but early in the final quarter Trasolini booted a beautiful field goal from thirty yards out for the last Westminster score of the game.

V.A.C. marched up the field in the final minutes of the game to put the ball on Royals' one-yard line, but failed by inches to get over on the third down as the whistle blew.

HOLDS HIS JOB

Terms of the contract were not announced, but unconfirmed reports said Evans probably will receive about 50 per cent of the $30,000 annual salary paid him under his old contract.

NITSICHIN IN HANDICAP WIN

D. S. Kennedy's Filly Captures Jockey Club Cup Handicap at Newmarket

Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 26.—In a three-horse race, D. S. Kennedy's five-year-old Nitsichin won the Jockey Club Cup Handicap over the two-and-a-quarter-mile route here this afternoon. She finished a length and a half in front of E. T. Thornton-Smith's Chatelaine, with Victor Emanuel's Statesman third, the same distance back.

Nitsichin was the favorite at 11 to 8; Chatelaine was 15 to 8, and Statesman 11 to 4, so the turfgoers had their merits judged pretty well. The winner, Bay Filly by Achtoi, out of Latium, carried 123 pounds, Chatelaine 107 and Statesman 113.

It was the sixty-first running of the Jockey Club Cup. Last year Brulette had a walk-over.

JOE STECHER IS DEFEATED

Veteran Wrestler Beaten By Jim McMillen; Dr. Sarpolis and Ray Steele Draw

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Jim McMillen, Chicago, threw his old rival, Joe Stecher, Dodge, Neb., with a flying tackle after 48 minutes 27 seconds of wrestling in the main event of a mat show before 5,104 spectators yesterday evening at the Chicago stadium. Both weighed 225 pounds.

Other results follow:

Ray Steele, 215, Glendale, Cal., and Dr. Carl Sarpolis, 217, University of Chicago, drew, thirty minutes.

George Zeherias, 231, Pueblo, Colo., threw Jone Devito, 210, St. Louis, seventeen minutes.

Everett Marshall, 230, Colorado, threw Dorna Ostopopasich, 222, Kansas City, headlock, twenty minutes.

Bronko Nagurski, 220, Minneapolis, and Pat O'Shocker, 222, Salt Lake City, drew, twenty minutes.

Wrestler Has Metal In Knee Protectors

Cleveland, O., Oct. 26.—For the second time, "Gentleman" Jack Washburn, Chicago grappler, yesterday evening was disqualified in a match with Leo Numa, former University of Washington footballer. This time the offence was for having metal concealed in his knee protectors.

The disqualification came after eighteen minutes and twenty-one seconds when Numa asked the referee to examine Washburn's protectors. He claimed he felt more than bone inside in the scrambling.

Seek To Improve English Football By Training Boys

Charles Buchan, Former Arsenal "Wizard," Coaching School Children

EXPERIMENT IS BEING WATCHED

Herbert Jones, Famous English International, May Leave Blackburn

London, Oct. 26.—An interesting experiment is being carried out at Highbury, the home of the Arsenal Football Club, where hundreds of public school boys are being taught the rudiments and finer points of the game of soccer under the eye of that famous Arsenal "wizard" of other days, Charles Buchan.

The idea of the scheme is to improve the standard of football, and the originator is Geoffrey Foster, of the Corinthians. No doubt, both the Arsenal and the Corinthians hope to profit by their foresight in reaping a crop of Buchans, Bastins, James's and G. O. Allen's. Anyhow, it is a splendid idea and will be watched with interest.

It is hoped in the near future to extend the facilities to elementary school boys.

A STRANGE ARSENAL

It was a strange Arsenal who drew 1 to 1 with Manchester City at Highbury. They were not playing the type of football that Manager Herbert Chapman cares to see, nor the type which their supporters are accustomed to.

What was the matter with the Arsenal? Is this the beginning of a decline of a great team, or is that little genius Alex James, who is out of the team through injury, missed so sorely?

If one can judge from the forward play of the team it would rather seem the latter. The whole line adopted the wrong tactics and it was only the sound half-back play of Hill, Roberts and John that held the team together. Many changes were made in the forward line, but they had no effect.

Tottenham Hotspurs struck a shrewd blow by defeating Leicester City on the latter's ground recently. Not only did they put themselves on top of the first division table by their victory, but they unmistakeably warned the Arsenal, their North London rivals, that they are foes to be feared. The Spurs are out to capture some of their old-time glamor and also the Arsenal's championship title.

They have collected a happy band of youngsters who have given up the Spurs tradition in recent years of fancy football for speed and sharp shooting.

A splendid outside-right has been secured in McCormick, who scored all three goals against Leicester.

The old question of the release by English clubs of Welsh and Irish players on their books for international matches has been raised again following a strong protest by the Irish Association to the Football League.

When Wales and Ireland agree at the Liverpool conference in 1931 to play international matches before December 14, it was on the understanding that the release of Irish players would practically be guaranteed.

Among the players refused leave of absence were Cook (Everton), Mackie (Portsmouth), Dunne (Sheffield United), Duggan (Leeds United) and English (Liverpool).

FAMOUS INTERNATIONAL TO LEAVE BLACKBURN

There is a possibility that Herbert Jones, the Blackburn Rovers' leftback and English International, will leave his club in the near future. Jones has requested his club to place him on the open transfer list, and, while the directors have not agreed to this course, it is understood that they will not stand in the player's way if an offer is made for his services.

Jones has been with Rovers for seven and a half seasons, during which time he has won many honors. Twice he has played for England against Scotland in 1927 and the following year, and he represented his country against Ireland in 1928. It was during this year that Jones gained a cup medal, being a member of the side which defeated Huddersfield Town by 3 to 1. In addition he has twice toured the continent with F.A. teams.

Altogether Jones has made 248 league appearances for Blackburn.

"Yip" Foster May Return to Ottawa

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 26.—Harry "Yip" Foster, defence man with the Red Wings, will likely go to the Ottawa Senators, Jack Adams, of the Red Wings announced yesterday. Ottawa had made a claim for Foster and only needs to reimburse the Detroit club for expense money spent on the player, it is reported here. Adams and Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers, are still dickering for Wilfred Starr as Adams is unwilling to allow Patrick an option to buy Starr back at the end of the season.

ART CHAPMAN NEW MANAGER

Succeeds George Boucher as Pilot of Boston Bruins' Cubs Hockey Team

Quebec, Oct. 26.—Art Chapman yesterday was appointed playing manager of Boston Bruins' Cubs of the Canadian-American League, succeeding George Boucher, recently appointed manager of the Ottawa Senators of the National Hockey League.

Chapman, who for the last three years has been playing good hockey for Boston Bruins of the National League, was appointed by Manager Art Ross of Bruins to his new position. He is subject to recall by the Bruins during the season.

Coming originally from Winnipeg, Chapman four years ago was with Providence Reds of the Canadian-American League. He was then drafted by Bruins.

NEW THREAT FOR RIDERS

Dales, Saskatchewan Junior Grid Champions, Set Ambitious Programme

Regina, Oct. 26. — Prospect of a new threat to Regina Roughriders' Saskatchewan rugby supremacy—now menaced by the Moose Jaw Millers—looms in the not-too-distant future, and the Dales, southern Saskatchewan junior champions, are the cause of a lot of speculation along this line.

The Dales have it all figured out. Last year they won the juvenile rugby championship of Saskatchewan and subsequently announced they would raise their team into the junior league. No one thought much of their chances, but to-day only one game stands between them and the Saskatchewan junior title. They play Saskatoon Hilltops Saturday.

Their latest scheme, which the players say has been long considered, is to play another season of junior football and then, in 1935 step into senior company. If the ambitious Dales carry out their present plan, it will be the first time since 1922, Regina has had two teams in the senior outfit, and opinion among Rugby fans is that, should the team stay together, the Roughriders will have to be right in there.

SEATTLE CAGERS PLAY VANCOUVER

Four Leading Washington Outfits Will Oppose Mainland Aggregations

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—Tentative first-half schedule of the Burrard Basketball League includes games with four crack quintettes from Seattle, according to a programme issued yesterday by President Al. Hardy.

Opening the league season Saturday night, Province men will tangle with Horlucks, Seattle brewing outfit in the second half of a double bill.

Negotiations are under way to bring University of Washington basketballers here on November 11 to meet Province in another intercity game, while the Seattle Demolays are scheduled to meet Red and White November 18, and Kellys, Seattle, will meet Safeway December 16.

INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE IS NOW PROPOSED

Montreal, Ottawa and Possibly Toronto Would Have Clubs in New Circuit Along With Six Teams From the United States; Would Play Regular Schedule

Montreal, Oct. 26.—Plans for the organization of an international professional football league, comprising eight clubs, two in Canada and six in the United States, are under way, Louis Letourneau and Lucien Riopel, directors of the Mount Royals, Montreal's professional team, stated yesterday.

The cities are New York, Boston, Brooklyn, Albany, Providence and Philadelphia in addition to Montreal. The second Canadian city would probably be Ottawa where, the directors state, a group had shown interest in the project. Should Ottawa not enter, Newark, N.J., was a probable starter.

All the eight cities, with the exception of Ottawa, now operate teams on an independent basis and the promoters here felt all would benefit by playing a league schedule.

Toronto, where a team was operated for a short time this season, was a doubtful entrant, Letourneau and Riopel added.

Montreal Wheelers Face Crucial Test In Match Saturday

Entertain Ottawa Rough Riders With Victory Needed to Remain in Grid Race

TORONTO ARGOS MEET HAMILTON

Moose Jaw and Regina Riders in Sudden-death Game For Saskatchewan Title

Toronto, Oct. 26.—Montreal's football team will carry the wholehearted backing of Toronto Argonauts into battle Saturday, against Ottawa Rough Riders. There is, of course, an ulterior motive behind this switch of Toronto tactics.

While Argos are playing Hamilton Tigers here in one-half of the big four menu, Roughriders and Wheelers will be deciding the immediate fate of the pursuing Oarsmen, as well as seasonal supremacy between themselves. Montreal can keep both Montreal and Toronto in the running with a victory over Ottawa.

Rough Riders have whipped Tigers in Hamilton and Argos and Wheelers in Ottawa. If they can win one of their two remaining away games, it should be simple for Wally Masters's men to win.

FINE HOME RECORD

Except for a pre-season defeat by Sarnia, Wheelers have not dropped a home game in more than two years. Argos, on the strength of their 21 to 2 win over Tigers last week, will start strong favorites to repeat the win here. If Wheelers do what the Scullers hope they will and beat Ottawa, Argos face the tough job of whipping the Rough Riders here and Montreal away to finish in a possible three-cornered tie for the lead.

This will not work out, however, if Hamilton springs a surprise by winning one of its remaining games.

The intercollegiate schedule reaches the vital point Saturday. The twin leaders, Queen's and University of Toronto, clash at Kingston and the loser will be on even terms with the winner of the McGill-Western game at London.

Saskatoon, Oct. 26.—The tangled situation in which Saskatchewan Senior Rugby League found itself after last Saturday's games, in which both Moose Jaw Millers and Regina Rough Riders scored victories, has been cleared up to-day with Saskatchewan Varsity defaulting their game against the Millers.

The Millers and students were tied for second place and had one encounter of the regular schedule left, with a win for either team necessitating a play-off with the Riders. This, however, has been eliminated by the Saskatchewan Varsity default. Probabilities now are the Millers and Rough Riders will meet in a sudden death encounter for the title Saturday.

Regina, Oct. 26.—Coaching worries of the Regina Rough Riders have been cleared up.

Al Ritchie, former mentor of the squad, will assist Curt Schave for the remainder of the season. Schave, star backfielder of the team, has been out of the game due to leg injuries, and had been running the coaching end of the business.

Endurance Swim Record Claimed

Rangoon, Burma, Oct. 26.—A new endurance swimming record for open water of 79 hours, 24 minutes was claimed yesterday by Prafulla Kumar Ghose.

Ghose made his effort in the Royal Lakes here and although exhausted at the finish was fully conscious and responded to the ovation of the crowd.

Charles Zimmy, legless swimmer, is credited by all sports record book with a mark of 100 hours, made in 1931 in a pool in Honolulu.

HOOP VICTORY FOR ADVERTS

Defeat Standard Steam Laundry 27 to 20 in Senior Women's Basketball

Regents Take Single Point Win From Dealats; Tillicums Defeat Lake Hill

Failing to overcome a fourteen-point lead gained by the Adverts in the first half, the Standard Steam Laundry suffered defeat, 27 to 20 in yesterday evening's senior women's basketball game at the Victoria High School gym. The laundry girls put up a courageous fight only to drop the game after a great second half rally. In the other games the Regents won a thriller from the Dealats, 18 to 17, with the winning basket being scored in the final seconds of the game, and Tillicums won handily from Lake Hill, 42 to 21.

Passing the ball well and working underneath the hoop for the majority of their shots and Adverts took a 16 to 2 lead in the opening half of their game against the Standards. With the start of the final two quarters, Buddy Elston and Hilda Scutt found the hoop with some beautiful baskets and soon the Standards were within striking distance of their opponents. Time, however, was too short and the Adverts' splendid defence withstood the attacks of the Standards.

MARY PEDEN HIGH

Mary Peden with twelve points was the leading scorer.

Roy Taylor's basket in the final seconds spelled victory for the Regents in their game against the Dealats. The winners took a 12 to 5 lead in the first half but the Dealats soon overtook them and were leading 17 to 16 with five seconds to go. Taylor then scored his one and only field basket of the game to give his team a win.

In a game featured by heavy checking the Tillicums downed the Lake Hill seniors. The clubmen led 16 to 10 at half time and in the final twenty minutes scored practically at will. Les Bradley collected twelve points to lead the scoring parade.

Tommy Macedo refereed all games.

Teams and individual scorers follow:

Dealats—Naysmith, Andrews (6), Bernie, Cliffe, Sharp (6), Coates (2), Shepheard (1), Higgins (2).

Regents—McAdams (2), Walters (2), Minnie (1), Noakes (8), Taylor (2), Webster (3).

Adverts—B. Peden (4), D. Martin, M. Peden (12), L. Spark (8), A. Lalonde (1), K. Freestone, G. Taylor (2), B. Boyce.

S.S. Laundry—H. Scutt (7), N. Purss, N. Rendle, D. McCaghey, B. Elston (8), D. Rendle (4), I. Crawford (1), E. Johnston, C. Yeamans.

Tillicums—Smith (4), Riddell (2), Bradley (12), Baker (8), Caddell (4), Jones, Hill (9), Petticrew (3), Passmore, Woods.

Lake Hill—L. Bates (4), Walker, Sutton, Michell (12), Styan, Atkinson, Campbell (3), Morgan, Cunningham (2).

U.S. FOOTBALL COACHES ON PAN

Several Mentors of Leading Eastern Teams Are Slated to Be Replaced

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Unless the alumni and students ease up in their annual campaign of "firing" coaches, big ten football may be drastically de-emphasized.

Presidents and faculty representatives of the big ten universities are disgusted with the "get a new coach" movement, the Associated Press was reliably informed to-day, and will take concerted action to dampen the enthusiasm for the sport unless there is a halt.

To-day, with big ten football enjoying its greatest year since 1927 from a financial standpoint, at least one coach, Sam Willaman of Ohio State, is on the "fire." Rumblings also were reported at Wisconsin, while at Notre Dame, outside the conference but a close ally, "Hunk" Anderson was rumoured to be on his way out.

YOUNG TERRY BEATS YAROSZ

Trenton "Buzzsaw" Brings an End to Latter's Long String of Victories

Punishing Body Attack Gives Terry Victory; No Knockdowns Are Seen

Newark, N.J., Oct. 26.—A fighting demon by the name of Young Terry stopped Teddy Yarosz's long string of victories in a fiery struggle yesterday evening, the Trenton "Buzzsaw" taking a well-earned decision in their ten-round imbroglio here.

Terry, weighing 160½ pounds, three pounds more than his young opponent, was on the offensive from the opening bell and centred his whole attack on the mid-section of the Pittsburgh middleweight, who had climbed to the top rank of his division by triumphs over Jerseyans.

Neither was able to knock the other to the canvas, but Terry piled up his winning points on his two-fisted body attack that functioned every time the battlers came into close quarters.

Referee Jack Phelan gave Terry six rounds, Yarosz three and called one even. The Associated Press score sheet credited Terry with five, Yarosz three, the third, sixth and eighth, and called two, the fifth and seventh even.

though he has been without a game so far this season.

Chelsea, like many other clubs, beset by team worries, have signed on Richard Edmund ("Bob") Gregg, the Birmingham inside-left. Leslie Knighton, formerly secretary-manager to the Birmingham club and now Chelsea's manager, effected this transfer.

Gregg is the second player from Birmingham to be signed by Chelsea this year, Argue, an inside-forward having joined the Stamford Bridge team a few months ago.

Born at Ferrybill, Gregg has played for Darlington, from whence he migrated to Sheffield Wednesday, finally to join Birmingham in January, 1931. Gregg will be remembered as one of Birmingham's cup final teams beaten by West Bromwich Albion in that year.

Last season, Gregg secored seven goals in thirty-three first division games for Birmingham, but so far this season he has played in few games.

Youngsters Give Baseballers Royal Welcome

The two favorite sons of California, as far as the kiddies are concerned, are Frank O'Doul, hero of the second game of the world baseball series, and Joe Cronin, Washington Senators' manager. The two are shown here surrounded by youthful admirers at San Francisco.

MONTREAL MAY GET FRANCHISE

Possibility of St. Louis Browns' Baseball Club Being Moved to Canada

No Action Until Probation of Phil Ball's Will; Harridge Is Doubtful

Montreal, Oct. 26.—"The entire question cannot even be discussed until Phil Ball's will is probated," stated Frank G. Shaughnessy, business manager of the Montreal Baseball Club, and general manager of the Montreal Exhibition Company, stated yesterday evening. Shaughnessy was discussing reports of a possibility of St. Louis Browns' American League franchise being moved to Montreal. "All stories of the transfer are mere supposition at the moment," he said.

"It all depends on what disposition Ball made of the franchise. I was in touch with an American League official, and he told me the matter cannot be discussed with any authority, because no one knows in whose hands the franchise will be left. I've no doubt, however, if the Browns' franchise is moved out of St. Louis it will come to Montreal," Shaughnessy said.

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—No likelihood of the removal of the St. Louis American League Baseball Club is seen by William Harridge, president of the circuit, in St. Louis to attend the funeral of Phil de Catesby Ball, owner of the club, whose death muddled affairs of the Browns. Harridge indicated belief Ball had provided for the management of the team in his will. The will will not be probated for several days.

"I see no likelihood of the Browns being taken away from St. Louis," Harridge explained. "Such a move would require unanimous consent of all the league club owners, including that of the owners of the club involved."

PARROTT AND PARTNER LEAD

The pair had covered 1,405 miles and six laps and had a point total of 483. Pete Van Kempen and Jules Audy were in second place, tied in mileage, but lacking sprint points.

Torchy Peden, famed Victoria redhead, and Reggie Fielding were in third place.

Standings at 11 o'clock follow:

Vancouver Lions Get Sammy McAdam

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—Two more prairie boys have been signed to play with Vancouver Lions in the Northwestern Professional Hockey League this winter, Manager Guy Patrick announced yesterday. Lude Palm, former Regina boy, who starred for several seasons with Weyburn Beavers, and Sammy McAdam, Winnipeg, have come to terms with the youthful prexy.

Palm will join his former Weyburn teammate, Walter McCartney, on the forward line. McAdam is not a newcomer to Vancouver, for it was with the Lions he broke into professional company in 1926. He was sold later to New York Rangers and farmed to Springfield.

RACING SUIT IS DISMISSED

Jockey Jimmy Hunter Loses Action to Secure Riding Fees From J. L. Scoby

Jockey Jimmy Hunter, hero of many a race on the tracks of this country and United States, to-day sued J. L. Scoby, owner of a string of race horses, for $90.70 riding fees for races he won at Brighouse track in August last.

Irene Rose Hunter, mother of Jimmy, and his father, Richard Chapman Hunter, who live in Victoria, appeared in court with E. H. M. Foot as their lawyer to prosecute the suit.

"Where is Jimmy?" asked Judge Lampman. "Why is he not here."

Mr. Foot explained that Jimmy was now at Latonia, where he is riding some of the noted mounts of the famous Whitney stable. Mr. Foot said that as Jimmy would be busy there for the winter racing season, he could not come back here for months. In the meantime, Mr. Scoby was about to set out with his string of horses from here, so it was necessary to bring the suit in Jimmy's absence.

MRS. HUNTER ON STAND

Mrs. Hunter took the stand and told the court about the jockey fees. In a handicap race, for a win, the jockey got $25, she said. In ordinary races the rates were $15 for a win, $8 for second place, $6 for third and $5 for non-placing horses. She testified that Jimmy in the week of August 19 to 26 had brought Flying Somers in first in a stake race and had won also on Night Flash. He had also had a couple of seconds on Ina Mae and King at Arms.

Form charts and other racing reports cluttered the counsel table, but the judge refused their admittance as exhibits as they had not been proved to be official reports.

R. C. Lowe, defence counsel, argued that nothing had been proved to place the responsibility for payment upon Mr. Scoby.

Mr. Foot told how Jimmy is working under George A. Lamb as jockey trainer on a retainer of $20 a month. It was explained that Mr. Lamb, under race track practices, resells the services of the jockey to the various stables, netting $45 a month on this part of his arrangement.

The judge ruled there was no case to answer and dismissed it, without Mr. Lowe having to call any defence witnesses, as it was a matter of non-suit on account of the inability of Jimmy's parents to prove their claim in the absence of the boy.

Garrison Register Fifth Victory In Wednesday Soccer

Defeat Maccabees 6 to 2 to Take Strangle Hold on Hayward Cup Lead

Spencers Whip Navy to Take Over Second Place; Hudson's Bay Winners

Garrison footballers chalked up their fifth straight victory in the Wednesday Football League yesterday afternoon by handing the Maccabees a 6 to 2 trouncing at the Work Point grounds. The win placed the Tommies well to the front in the Hayward Cup series and made them practically certain winners of the trophy. Defeating the Navy 3 to 2 at Heywood Avenue, Spencers moved into second place, four points behind the Garrison. The Hudson's Bay won the third match from the James Bay Liberals at lower Beacon Hill 4 to 2. The Bays and Maccabees are tied for third place.

Although they opened the match with only ten men the Maccabees had the better of the early play and after ten minutes went into the lead on Campbell's goal from a cross by Gibson. At this stage Newell arrived to bring the lodgemen to full strength. The Garrison put everything into their offensive in an effort to equalize, but thirty minutes had elapsed before Miller beat Wilmshurst with the tying counter. Half-time found the clubs still on an even footing.

GARRISON DOMINATE

In the second half the Tommies completely dominated play to drive home five goals, while they held their opponents to a single marker. The soldiers went into the lead when Cook found the net. This was followed by two quick goals from the boots of Worswick and Miller. It was not long before Worswick added his second goal. The Maccabees finally relieved the pressure and Campbell scored their second goal. A few minutes before the finish Miller drove through for the Garrison's sixth marker and his third.

Alcock refereed.

The teams follow:

Garrison — Glendenning, Burgess, Buxton, Evans, Dyer, Edwards, McAllister, Worswick, Miller, Bichard and Cook.

Maccabees—Wilmshurst, T. Graves, Speller, W. Graves, Gelling, Hill, Fieldhouse, Roberts, Campbell, Gibson and Newell.

Spencers and Navy turned in a brilliant exhibition despite the heavy ground, which gave the players little opportunity to control the ball.

Les Bradley, who played well for the departmentals, opened the scoring when he drove a hard fast shot at Goalie Barker during the first four minutes. Barker was unable to handle the slippery leather, and it slipped past him into the net. Navy pressed hard, but were unable to score until some time later, when McMillan, in Spencer's goal, was drawn out and Walker tied the score.

Navy took a lead a few minutes after the second half began, when McMillan misjudged a high kick from Hibbert, and the ball went over his head into the goal as he ran out to receive it.

Spencers tried hard for the equalizer, and missed several possible opportunities in front of the goal, and several times were robbed of their chances by Barker's work in the Navy goal. During a forward rush, while players of both teams were scrimmaging in front of the Navy goal, a foul was called against the leaders and Bissell sank the penalty shot to tie the count.

WINNING GOAL

During the next five minutes, Spencers fought steadily and were rewarded for their efforts when Luxton headed in the winning tally. For the rest of the game Navy were the aggressors, but the stellar work of Spencers' backs repell their rushes, while a number of kicks sailed over the cross bar.

McKinnon refereed.

The teams follow:

Spencers—McMillan, Munroe, Bissell, D. Bradley, Cann, Clarke, Brown, G. Preston, Chapman, Luxton, C. Preston and L. Bradley.

Navy—Barker, Tapley, Whyte, McDonald, Hall, Dovey, Marr, Bennallack, Cockrill, Walker and Hibbert.

The Hudson's Bay and James Bay Liberals' game was a slow exhibition, and the condition of the grounds did not help much in speeding it up. Hudson's Bay took a single goal margin in the first half, which they increased to two in the second, after the Liberals had evened the count.

After the first fifteen minutes of play Stevens registered the Bay's first counter, scoring with a fast drive past Saddler. McBride evened the score for the Liberals, however, but before the half was over Stevens contributed another to give the Bays a 2 to 1 lead.

The Liberals squared matters just after the second stanza opened when White scored from a penalty. The Bays pressed and were playing in the Liberals' territory when the ball was handled and Wyatt scored from the penalty. McKenzie scored the final count for the victors a few minutes before the game ended.

McKay refereed.

The teams follow:

James Bay Liberals—Saddler, Eastwood, White, Belford, Anderson, M McBride, Wood, Davidson, Ferguson, H. McBride and Miller.

Hudson's Bay—Baxter, Nicol, McKenzie, Oakman, Moir, Mercer, Ward, Wyatt, Stevens, Bently and Fish.

Heavy Pressure In Late Trading and Wheat Prices Ease

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Oct. 26.—Heavy pressure in closing minutes added nearly a cent to losses wheat futures sustained in early trading on the Grain Exchange to-day. Prices ended at levels 2 to 1¾ cents under the previous finish.

It was hard to determine the source of the late selling wave, but most of it appeared to come from weakened longs, realizing what they could on earlier purchases.

Final quotations were at bottom levels, with October quoted at 63½, November 63⅝, December 63½ and May 67⅜ cents.

Export business was disappointing and no figure was placed on the movement. Outside markets were easier, with Liverpool prices finishing 1½ to 1¾d lower. Buenos Ayres was fractionally off at noon, and Chicago had a similar trend to Winnipeg.

Cash grains trading was indifferent. Coarse grains slipped off in sympathy with wheat, with flax leading the decline. This commodity was down five cents at one time.

CHICAGO FALLS

Chicago, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—About 3 cents a bushel downturn in Chicago Wheat Market to-day resulted from intermittent selling pressure that was ascribed largely to yesterday's buyers.

An advance of 18 cents in the United States official quotation on gold was apparently not enough to stimulate any aggressive buying of wheat or other cereals.

Wheat closed unstable, 2¼-3 cents under yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 1 cent lower, oats 1⅛-⅞ cents off, and provisions unchanged to 27 cents decline.

Associated Press

New York, Oct. 26.—Stocks sagged to-day as grains turned heavy and traders were unable to muster any great amount of enthusiasm for an 18-cent advance in the price of gold to $31.54 an ounce. Except in a few spots, however, the list was not particularly soft and the activity was generally quiet. The close was easy.

Transfers approximated 1,250,000 shares.

The new gold price was 48 cents above that of London, but the dollar held to an extremely narrow range in foreign exchange dealings. Wheat lost around 2 to 3 cents a bushel. Cotton and other commodities were hesitant.

Equities mulled about indifferently during the greater part of the session, although, for the most part, the drift was lower. There was little short selling, but, at the same time, buyers were timid.

Homestake Mining was the bright light in stocks, getting up around twenty points. U.S. Industrial Alcohol advanced about two and a few others were a trifle higher. American Telephone, Case and Allied Chemical dropped three or more each. Others down fractionally to a point or more, after a mild rally, included U.S. Steel, Goodyear, Du Pont, Chrysler, New York Central, Union Pacific, National Distillers, U.S. Smelting, American Smelting, Alaska Juneau and Commercial Solvents.

By Victor Eubank, Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Oct. 26.—Stocks and staples were in a mulling mood on Wall Street to-day as futile efforts were made by market analysts to read between the lines of the government's new gold programme.

The R.F.C. fixed the new price of yellow metal at $31.54 an ounce, up eighteen cents from yesterday and forty-eight cents above the London rate. Equities, grains, cotton and most other commodities were little enthused, however, although they were not too reactionary. United States dollar was virtually at a standstill in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were irregular.

Shares of Homestake Mining rallied thirteen points, and those of U.S. Industrial Alcohol recovered one. Case sagged two and others, fractionally to around a point lower, included U.S. Steel, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, American Smelting, U.S. Smelting, Union Pacific, National Distillers, Consolidated Gas and Chrysler.

Dome and McIntyre, continuing to lead the activity in the Canadian group, were inclined to ease fractionally. International Nickel maintained a steady course while Canadian Pacific slipped a shade. On the curb, Lake Shore Mines conceded a half point and Hiram Walker sagged nearly two. Dominion Government obligations ruled ⅛ higher to a similar fraction lower.

CLEAN-UP SEEN

Market observers, while not in agreement as to the efforts of the new gold policy, generally expressed the opinion prior to the President's edict there had been a fairly thorough cleaning up of loosely-held stock.

Banking circles were impressed with the relatively small advance in the gold price, some viewing the moderate increase as an indication of the conservative policy of the R.F.C. At the same time, it was pointed out, it is apparent, whatever ammunition may exist in the gold-manipulation, price-elevating lever, the government does not intend to exhaust the supply all at once.

Noted Explorer Killed In Mishap

Evelyn Briggs Baldwin Went With Peary Into Greenland as Weather Observer

Organized Own Expedition in 1901, But Never Reached North Pole

Washington, Oct. 26.—Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, noted explorer, was killed yesterday evening when he was struck by an automobile while crossing a street. He was seventy-one years old.

Baldwin, who was one of Peary's companions on the latter's second expedition to Greenland in 1893, was dead upon arrival at a hospital.

He was connected with the United States weather bureau as an observer until last July.

His experience as a meteorologist gave Baldwin his chance to go with Peary into Greenland. He dreamed for years of reaching the North Pole himself, but his ambition never was realized.

In 1898 he went north with Walter Wellman and then in 1901 was commander of the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition.

Baldwin, who was never married, was born in Springfield, Mo., July 22, 1862.

Baldwin's first chance to fare beyond the Arctic circle came in 1893 with Peary's second expedition to Greenland. He applied for a berth and because of his ability in meteorology was given a place in that capacity.

The previous year Peary had forced his way across the Greenland ice cap to Independence Bay. Enthusiastic over the smooth surface of its frozen expanse, he termed it "the royal road to the North Pole." The purpose of the second expedition was to have been a dash to the top of the world by way of Independence Bay.

Further observations, however, convinced the explorer that the route was impracticable, and later exploration confirmed this theory. Drifting pack ice would have carried the polar party far to the south of its objective.

Peary next turned to a route proposed by Baldwin and several of his associates, a path partly opened by previous exploration. It led through Kane Basin and Kennedy Channel and along the northern coast of Grinnell Land. Ultimately Peary reached his goal in this way, but several years later. The second expedition was forced to return to civilization before the dash could be attempted.

The ill-fated Andree balloon expedition next attracted Baldwin. He was included in the party and set out for Spitzbergen. On July 11, 1897, five days before the Andree balloon was to take to the air, the winds became so favorable that the trip had to be attempted at once. The next day Baldwin reached Spitzbergen.

The Andree expedition ended in disaster. In 1930 the skeletons of its participants were found by Norwegian explorers and many theories were advanced as to how the abundantly provisioned group of men had met death.

WAS ABANDONED

In 1898 and 1899 Baldwin again ventured into the north, this time as meteorologist and second in command of the Walter Wellman expedition. The party reached a latitude of 81 degrees and 30 seconds, but was inadequately equipped and the final dash for the pole had to be abandoned.

With a group from the party, Baldwin set off to the west of Crown Prince Rudolph Land to see what lay beyond. He discovered and named Graham Bell Land.

Two years later, in 1901, came the biggest job of his career when he organized and commanded his own party, the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition. He made elaborate preparations. From the south to the north coast of Franz Josef Land he established four supply depots. On the northeast coast of Greenland he set up three safety stations, equipped with fuel and supplies, to be used on the return. Thus he sought to cover all contingencies, both on a dash to the pole and on the equally dangerous trek back to his base.

But those were the days when an Arctic expedition went into the frozen wastes of the polar region and became engulfed in silence. There were no radios, no planes. If shortage developed in any indispensable supplies, the only hope of the explorers was in arrival on schedule of a relief ship.

These conditions spelled finis to the Baldwin-Ziegler enterprise. Confusion arose about orders for a supply ship, loaded principally with coal. The marooned men, facing a six months' winter with inadequate fuel, sent up balloons to which were attached message buoys.

They hoped the messages would drift to the open waters to the south and there be picked up. But as the balloons rose into the upper atmosphere the winds carried them almost directly north.

Many of these buoys were recovered in later years, one being found on the coast of Iceland in April, 1931. Baldwin said then that about twenty-five of the aerial messengers had been found.

But none of them was discovered in time to save the expedition. The supply ship failed to arrive and the explorers were compelled to return to Norway, hoping to renew the attempt the following year.

The party introduced several innovations in polar exploration, notably the use of motion picture photography. Many reels of film were taken during the preparations for the final dash and these, when exhibited, attracted wide attention.

Baldwin also had used for the first time in such exploration the Siberian horse and, found it of great value; superior, in fact, to sledge dogs, in rough or heavy going.

Planning to return to the north the next year and make use of the supply depots he had established, Baldwin was immeasurably disappointed to find financial support had been withdrawn by his backers, and any further exploration had to be abandoned.

CUNARD LINE PLANS TRIPS

Ss. Franconia Will Cruise Around the World Over Southern Course

"Travel between Europe and North America has been well sustained this season, although it has not been quite up to the Atlantic travel of 1932," stated F. Lefeaux, assistant general-agent of the Cunard Line, the Anchor-Donaldson Line and the Anchor Line at Vancouver, who was a visitor to Victoria yesterday on business.

The big Cunard liners that operate on the Atlantic will take a series of cruises to the Mediterranean and the West Indies this winter, Mr. Lefeaux said.

The Ss. Franconia has been fixed to take the Cunard cruise around the world this winter. She will sail from New York January 9 and go through the Panama Canal to California, then to the South Seas and Australia, to Bali, Batavia, Penng, Madras, Colombo, Zanzibar, Natal, Port Elizabeth, Montevideo, Buenos Aires, Santos, Rio de Janeiro, Barbados, and New York, returning to the latter port May 31.

Last year the liner Carinthia took this route around the world and so popular was it that the Cunard Line decided to operate its world cruise liner on the same itinerary again this season.

Three Sailors Died "In Line of Duty"

Inquest Board Inquires Into Mishap Between U.S. Cruiser and British Freighter

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—Three officers killed in the collision between the United States navy cruiser Chicago and the British freighter Silver Palm, "died in line of duty," a Navy Inquest Board reported yesterday.

The inquest was held aboard the battered Chicago, tied up at Mare Island for repairs. Those who died were: Lieut. H. A. MacFarlane, U.S.N.; Lieut. F. S. Chappelle, U.S. Marine Corps, and Chief Pay Clerk John W. Troy.

Explanations of the accident came from officers of both ships.

While the navy yard worked on the cruiser, the first explanation of the collision to come from the freighter was put out by Lillick, Olson and Graham, representative of the Kerr Line of London, operators of the Silver Palm. Quoting Capt. T. B. Cox of the Silver Palm, the agent said the Chicago first was seen a mile away from the freighter.

"As soon as this observation was made, the ship's engines were ordered full speed astern," Capt. Cox was quoted as saying. "The fog was intermittent. Prior to sighting the Chicago, the fog siren of the Silver Palm was sounded continuously."

The freighter captain said every effort was made to avoid the crash. He said no whistle from the Chicago was heard until she appeared out of the fog.

Tales of a mystery ship at the scene were told by naval officers in describing the crash.

MYSTERY SHIP

Vice-Admiral Harris Langing and Capt. Herbert E. Kays said the Chicago had manoeuvred to escape "a large freighter off our starboard side," just before the collision. They said the mysterious ship disappeared in the fog.

Hearing the whistle of the mystery ship off the starboard side, Capt. Kays ordered the cruiser stopped, he said. The fog lifted and "there she was, 800 or 900 yards off our starboard, going in a direction that would cross our bows.

"I ordered the Chicago to go ahead," he said, "and then almost immediately there came another ship out of the fog on our port bow, close aboard and headed directly for the Chicago. I signaled for emergency full speed astern, tooted the whistle, but the approaching vessel crashed into the port bow just forward of No. 1 gun turret, which stopped her cutting off our bow."

The Silver Palm crashed eighteen feet deep into the cruiser, opening a forty-foot hole on deck and crushing nine staterooms underneath. The freighter struck forward of the armored plate, which protects only the engine rooms. Three officers met their death and another was critically injured in the wreckage of the ship as they struggled to answer the "collision call."

All the officers declared that had not the Chicago been moving so slowly a moment before, and had not the order for emergency full speed astern been given, the Silver Palm would have crashed the cruiser amidships, possibly exploding one of her boilers and causing much greater damage and loss of life.

FOUR SHIPS LOAD LUMBER

Ogden Point Busy To-day as Freighters Loading Over 3,000,000 Feet

October Shipment of Lumber Expected to Total 10,000,000 Feet

Four freighters are at the Ogden Point piers to-day loading over 3,000,000 feet of lumber for the United Kingdom and the Orient. It is one of the busiest days Ogden Point has had in years.

For several days lumber has been piling up in the yards at Ogden Point. It is all from up-island points and was handled by the Canadian National Railways through the Point Ellice terminal. It was sent from Point Ellice to Ogden Point by barge. In all the four ships are taking out 125 cars.

The British freighter Oakworth docked at Ogden Point yesterday and expects to get away this evening for Chemainus, en route to London. She is loading about 600,000 feet.

Yesterday evening at 11.30 o'clock the Danish motorship Nordhavet docked at Ogden Point and is loading nearly 1,000,000 feet for the United Kingdom. An hour later the British freighter Bencleuch docked.

Early this afternoon the Ss. City of Vancouver arrived from Chemainus and Union Bay and commenced loading for Shanghai and other ports in the Orient.

To-day's shipment will send the October shipments of lumber from Victoria up considerably. For the last few months about 8,000,000 feet a month have been shipped from this port. October shipments are expected to reach 10,000,000 feet, a new high record for Victoria.

Famed Barque Changes Hands

San Francisco, Oct. 26. — An ill-starred episode in the career of the barque Star of England came to an end yesterday as the vessel was sold under the hammer for $2,500 to Rosenthal and Lerner of Oakland, to satisfy libels filed against it.

The barque, now lying in Mission Bay, was purchased last year by Edward Grieve, Paul Mayer and Arnold Malmquit for a co-operative 'round-the-world venture. The plan failed and Grieve and his wife, financially broken, attempted suicide last December.

MAQUINNA IS STORMBOUND

Early winter gales are raging off the West Coast of Vancouver Island and the Ss. Princess Maquinna was stormbound at Winter Harbor at 8 o'clock this morning, according to a wireless message received at the Gonzales Station. Winter Harbor is not far from Port Alice.

Wireless stations along the West Coast to-day reported high winds and heavy seas. The Princess Maquinna remained sheltered all morning at Winter Harbor but expected to get away this evening when the seas abated. She is due here Saturday.

TO PICK UP PASSENGERS

Ss. Ruth Alexander Calling at Astoria To-day For Passengers From Admiral Evans

To pick up the forty-two passengers who were aboard the Ss. Admiral Evans when she became crippled off the mouth of the Columbia River yesterday, the liner Ruth Alexander, which sailed from Victoria at midnight put into Astoria this afternoon. She was to remain only long enough to embark two passengers and was then to proceed to California ports.

The Admiral Evans became disabled when her rudder and stern port were broken shortly after she left the Columbia River yesterday morning on her way to California ports. She sent out a call for assistance and the tugboat Arrow No. 3 and the cutter Redwing were dispatched to aid her. They took her in tow and brought her to Astoria, arriving yesterday evening.

The passengers remained aboard all night, awaiting the arrival of the Ruth Alexander this afternoon from Victoria. The cargo of 1,400 tons aboard the Evans was to be removed at Astoria and transferred to a freighter of the Pacific Steamship Lines.

Officers of the Admiral Evans stated nothing particular happened to cause the accident. The rudder simply broke, and the vessel rode at anchor until the arrival of the Arrow and the Redwing. The weather was favorable and not at any time was the ship in danger.

As soon as the ship reached Astoria a diver was sent below to determine the full extent of the damage. As soon as the passengers are transferred to the Ruth Alexander, and the cargo is taken off, the Evans will be towed to Portland and placed in drydock there for permanent repairs.

PLANE CARRIER GETS OVERHAUL

U.S.S. Lexington in Puget Sound Naval Drydock For Annual Refitting

Seattle, Oct. 26.—The cost of overhaul of the U.S.S. Lexington, airplane carrier of the United States Navy, in the Puget Sound naval drydock means the expenditure of more than $125,000. The Lexington is now in drydock here.

The carrier, ranked as one of the fastest big vessels in the world, is likewise one of the world's largest power plants, her four turbo-generators developing 180,000 horsepower. This current, sufficient to supply a city the size of Boston, in turn drives four batteries of two motors each, which spin her four propellers to produce a speed said to exceed thirty-five miles an hour.

The work scheduled for the overhaul includes the complete disassembling of turbines, cleaning and retubing, if necessary, of her boilers, contained in sixteen separate fire rooms, and a complete going over of the ship's auxiliary machinery.

The Lexington's normal complement is 2,000 men, and ninety-six planes, including observation, combat and bombing aircraft. Navy Yard executives yesterday estimated the overhaul is approximately seveny-five per cent completed.

The Lexington, which with her sister ship, the Saratoga, cost the government $86,000,000 is scheduled to leave drydock November 17, and proceed to Long Beach.

General Edward J. Higgins, head of the Salvation Army, and Mrs. Higgins sailed by the White Star liner Olympic on their return to London after a brief visit to Canada and the United States. Others aboard the Olympic were Dr. Harvey Cushing, Ralph B. Blumenfeld, chairman of The London Daily Express, and Professor Harold Beckwith-Whitehouse.

When the Olympic arrived from Europe she brought the Earl of Dudley, who was equerry to the Prince of Wales on his last visit to the United States. The earl left, after a few days here, for the World's Fair at Chicago.

CHOOSE APRIL FOR FESTIVAL

B.C. Drama Festival Association to Hold 1934 Contest in Third Week of April

Major L. Bullock-Webster Re-elected to Presidency of Society By Acclamation

At the annual meeting of the British Columbia Drama Festival Association, held yesterday evening in the City Hall, it was decided to hold the 1934 competitions during the third week in April and to have the plays on the final night's programme selected from the best plays of the whole week rather than have each evening's winners produced again on the last evening. Major L. Bullock-Webster was unanimously re-elected to the presidency of the association.

In his presidential address, Major Bullock-Webster said the association was on a firm basis at the present time. Fifty-one affiliated clubs and societies throughout the province were taking part in the association's work and it was gradually evolving into a strong position, where it could be of inestimable service in building an interest in and for the theatre.

Evidently organization had taken place at the psychological moment, for, he said, despite the depression, the festival had proved highly successful. He also touched upon some of the proposed changes and improvements for the 1934 contest.

Twenty-nine groups, representative of eighteen organizations, had competed in the festival last spring, the president said. Despite first place going to a Vancouver team, Victorians were able to point with pride to the record made by the local actors and actresses.

Interesting and constructive criticism and discussion took place at the meeting and it was decided that a constructive criticism will be handed down with each night's judging. On the motion of Mrs. Hugh Nixon a classification of the plays will be made.

Besides the re-election of Major Bullock-Webster to the presidency, other officers elected were: Herbert E. Pott, vice-president; H. G. Hinton, treasurer, and Roy Goldfinch, secretary.

In the treasurer's report a bank balance of $98.09 was reported, against $53.65 last October. Gross receipts from the festival held at the Crystal Garden last spring totaled $485.20, while disbursements for amusement tax, rents and other charges totaled $456.40. There was also a report of the expenses connected with the elimination trials for the Dominion Drama Festival.

Calgary, Oct. 26 (Canadian Press).—Possibility the Calgary mayoralty slate may be increased to three was seen today in the admission of Alderman R. H. Weir he might enter the contest. The two in the field already are Mayor Andy Davidson and Alderman S. S. Savage.

NOTHING TO COMPARE WITH BUCKLEY'S FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

Tribute Paid To Public Service Of W. J. Bowser

Prominent Business and Political Figures Regret Loss of W. J. Bowser, K.C.

Tribute to the late W. J. Bowser, K.C., leader of the Non-Partizan Group, whose death occurred suddenly yesterday in Vancouver, was paid by a wide circle of prominent men to-day, many of whom had been his enemies in political life, but who had admiration for his fine spirit and sterling ability.

The tributes follow:

PREMIER S. F. TOLMIE

"With the passing of W. J. Bowser, K.C., all British Columbia bows reverently to the memory of a man who for more than thirty years fought for her, and at last gave his life in a final great endeavor in her service.

"For three decades Mr. Bowser had been prominent in the public life of this province. His sudden death has left a void which will be felt by all citizens. Positive in character to the greatest degree, Mr. Bowser was, perforce, decided in his opinions on all public questions; there was not a suspicion of vacillation in his personality, and all men always knew exactly where he stood.

"Mr. Bowser, quick of wit and ready with decision, possessed a fighting spirit which carried him through many a hard-fought issue during his extended public career. He was a fighter with whom opponents considered it an honor and a privilege to measure strength.

"He was respected by all because of his honesty, his integrity, and his services to the state throughout his long career. In the history of British Columbia his place will be honored for all time."

Hon. William Savage, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. W. M. Dennies, Minister of Labor, joined the Premier in expressions of deep regret at the demise of Mr. Bowser. They also extended their sincere sympathy to relatives of the former Premier of British Columbia.

T. D. PATTULLO

"W. J. Bowser, in his prime, was looked upon by his associates as a fearless fighter, and it was a fitting climax to his career that he should die fighting in one of the hardest political campaigns in British Columbia's history.

"Tuesday night from a public platform I stated I did not want to get into an argument with Mr. Bowser in the evening of his life. I did not anticipate that the time would be so short.

"I appreciated the splendid ability and great energy of Mr. Bowser and I feel a very deep regret at his passing."

HON. R. H. POOLEY

"The sudden passing of Mr. Bowser came as a distinct shock to me. I sat with him in the House for many years, and can testify to his many abilities; his determination to advance the best interests of British Columbia, and his worth as an administrator. He was an indefatigable worker who did not spare himself in his efforts to accomplish whatever task he confronted. My sincere sympathy goes out to his bereaved relatives."

MAYOR DAVID LEEMING

"The death of Mr. Bowser has come as a great shock to us. He was one of the old guard, an outstanding man in the political life of this province, and a leader who did much toward the development of British Columbia. His passing is a severe loss to this province, and on behalf of the City Council, I wish to extend our deepest sympathy to his bereaved family."

LIBERAL CANDIDATES

John Hart, Joseph Clearihue, W. H. Kinsman and Byron Johnson, issued the following statement:

"As Liberal candidates in the present election we desire to express our sincere regret at the untimely passing of W. J. Bowser. For many years Mr. Bowser has been an outstanding personality in the public life of our province, and has rendered exceptional service as Attorney-General and later as Premier. He commanded the respect of all parties and his great ability both as a leader of the bar and in public life was recognized by all. News of his passing was received by us with profound regret. All political opponents, regardless of their views, are bound to admire the courage of 'The Grand Old Politician,' who fought so strenuously throughout this campaign."

UNIONIST CANDIDATES

Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, on behalf of Brigadier J. Sutherland Brown, Col. H. T. Goodland and Frederick J. Crowhurst, and himself, said: "I am very sorry indeed to hear of the passing of Mr. Bowser. I knew that he was not well, but was shocked and surprised to hear of his sudden demise. I regret very much that it should be so."

NON-PARTIZAN CANDIDATES

"We feel his loss terribly. We are going to carry on, because we know that would have been his wishes. He expressed the greatest optimism for the future and was exceedingly pleased concerning the campaign and the manner in which it was being conducted. He was perfectly satisfied that his cause was just and was confident that the group he represented would be successful."

C.C.F. CANDIDATES

Rev. Robert Connell said: "On behalf of the local C.C.F. candidates I am asked to express our regret at the sudden death of Mr. Bowser. He represented a view of political life and public needs different from ours, but he was an honorable opponent. His courage and determination, shown by his participation in this, his last, campaign, won the respect of us all and we join most sincerely in every public expression of sympathy with his family."

W. C. MORESBY, K.C.

"The passing of Mr. Bowser is most deplorable. I had the highest personal regard for him and his great ability as a leader and a statesman. I recognized at the time, and still recognize, that he was the best Attorney-General we ever had. His death will be a great loss to the province, and my personal sympathies are with his relatives."

REGINALD HAYWARD

"It was with the deepest sorrow that I learned of the death of Mr. Bowser. His death is a loss that will be regretted by the people of this province as a whole.

"I had the honor of fighting two provincial campaigns under his able leadership, and learned to honor and respect him, and although in recent years we have not seen eye to eye on certain matters political, we always remained the best of friends, and agreed to disagree. My sympathies go out to his relatives, and as a token of respect to his memory I have closed my campaign committee rooms until after the funeral."

ALDERMAN R. T. WILLIAMS

"It was with the deepest regret that I heard of the sudden passing of Mr. Bowser. As one that served in the provincial government service during the time that Mr. Bowser was head of affairs in British Columbia, I feel his loss very keenly. He was very friendly to me and to all in the printing and binding departments and other department of the service. I never knew him at any time to fail in recognizing and saying a friendly word to any of the staff he might meet anywhere in the city. He was firm, yet gentle, and a believer in all things that were right. His death will prove a distinct loss to the province because of his mature knowledge and wide experience, which would have been most valuable had he lived."

P. J. SINNOTT

"The death of Mr. Bowser, with such startling suddenness, comes as a great shock to the people of this province. By those of us who knew him intimately, his loss is keenly felt. The tragedy of his death is that it occurred in the midst of a splendid effort, in his declining years and while in not too robust health, to offer his services once again to his country. That he died in the thick of the political battle, which he loved so well, reminds us that it is the kind of death the veteran warrior would himself have chosen. Citizens of all shades of political opinon have received the sad news with the deepest regret."

C. R. "JOE" NORTH

"I cannot express how deeply I am affected by the sudden passing of Mr. Bowser, whom I greatly admired. There are times when it is impossible to adequately express one's feelings, and this is such an occasion. I extend my sincere sympathy to his family."

NORMAN W. WHITTAKER

"Everyone, irrespective of their political faith, will deeply regret Mr. Bowser's passing. In his passing, British Columbia has lost an outstanding figure. He was a man who compelled the respect of his political opponents, and the admiration of all for his great capacities. British Columbia has benefited greatly through Mr. Bowser's many years of public service, and his name will long occupy a huge place in the regard of the people.

C. E. WHITNEY-GRIFFITHS

"I heard the news of Mr. Bowser's death with deep regret. I knew Mr. Bowser for more than twenty-seven years, and had frequent dealings with him while he was Attorney-General as well as Premier. He always showed the deepest sympathy for farm problems and had, on many occasions, given ready help to the Farmers' Institute movement. We all enjoyed a hard fighter, and we will miss him as an outstanding man in the political arena."

MR. JUSTICE McPHILLIPS

"I deeply regret the death of Mr. Bowser and feel it is not only a great personal loss but a distinct loss to the province, one that will be difficult to fill. He was a man of sterling character and great ability.

"He had the courage of his convictions, was a strong fighter and had considerable statesmanship. A lucid and rapid debater, he achieved a high position at the bar before entering politics, and I held for him a deep personal friendship and the highest regard."

R. L. REID, K.C.

"I have known Mr. Bowser for many years and have found him an able man of high principles and great executive ability, both in his connection with the administration of his office and privately.

"He was the best administrator of government affairs we have ever had in the province.

"His loss will be felt keenly not only by the province, but by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance in an way during the past years, and his name will long be remembered in the country."

SENATOR R. F. GREEN

"Mr. Bowser was one of the ablest men in public life in British Columbia, and rendered outstanding service to the province. His passing is a distinct loss.

"I enjoyed his friendship for a great many years, and sat in the Legislature with him. I knew him for nearly forty years, and during the most of that time was closely associated with him in public affairs. I always had a great personal admiration for him, and feel his sudden passing very keenly. I extend my sympathy to those relatives who are left to mourn him."

J. W. DeB. FARRIS, K.C.

"I regret very much to hear of Mr. Bowser's death. While I was opposed to Mr. Bowser, I always admired his great courage and his determination. His going will be a great loss to this province."

DUGALD DONAGHY, K.C.

"Mr. Bowser, former Premier and Attorney-General, combined great intellectual power with remarkable strength of character. He was a dynamic force supported by a courage which won the admiration not only of his close associates but the whole people of British Columbia.

"As a minister of the Crown he will be remembered chiefly for his able and fearless administration of the responsible office of Attorney-General.

"He knew his days on earth were not long but he gave of them freely in the hope that from the great storehouse of his experience he might be able to help his beloved province to solve some of its present difficulties. His passing is a great loss to the public life of British Columbia.

"As one of his colleagues very closely associated with him during the past year, I feel his passing very keenly. He loved public life and he died in the midst of his labor before his work was finished. His name will live in the history of this province."

A. D. CREASE

"In the death of Mr. Bowser a great personality has been taken from our midst. A man so prominently identified with public life in the city and in the province will be greatly missed and his absence regrettably noticed. Oak Bay municipality joins in extending sympathy to those he has left behind."

OAK BAY LIBERALS

Carleton W. Stocker, president—"In the passing of W. J. Bowser, K.C., British Columbia has lost not only one of its finest citizens, but also a man who, through his long association with governmental affairs, was a leader and fighter to the last. He commanded, by his wonderful ability, the respect of all his opponents."

JAMES ELRICK

James Elrick, Non-partizan candidate in Esquimalt, paid the following tribute at a meeting in Metchosin Hall yesterday evening:

"Having called this meeting to-night and advertised it throughout the district, I felt that some of you might have come a long way to the meeting and I put in an appearance so as not to disappoint the electors of Metchosin.

"It is a great blow to me to stand here and give you the sad news of the sudden death of Mr. Bowser, and leader of the Non-partizan party. Out of respect to a great leader, statesman and my chief in this election, I do not intend to hold this meeting to-night.

"Had Mr. Bowser been spared to form the next government, he would have led the people out of this chaotic position which we are in at the present time. However, we will carry on. The foundation stone has been truly laid and without the master builder we will endeavor to carry on to complete the work he began."

ALDERMAN A. McGAVIN

"Hon. W. J. Bowser was one of the outstanding public men in this province. I always admired him, for he was a man of courage and determination and his passing on will be a loss to the province."

Robert Cassidy, K.C., Conservative candidate for Victoria:

"Mr. Bowser was a great parliamentarian, administrator, and political protagonist. I think he did not fully appreciate the weight of his powers, or where his real strength lay, namely in the Legislature, as attorney-general, and on the hustings to direct contact with the electors. He did not need either a party machine, or the support of men of little weight who gratified him by their adherence. He was a great fighter, a good man, and a great loss to this province."

URGE INCREASED RELIEF SCALE

Unemployed Situation in Albernis Less Acute, But Families Need Aid

Special to The Times

Port Alberni, Oct. 26. — While the unemployed situation in Port Alberni is not expected to be so acute in the next few months as it was last winter, there is ample proof that many families are now or soon will be in needy circumstances and the city council will be called upon to aid them.

At this week's meeting of the Port Alberni council a letter was read from the Alberni District Protective Association in which the secretary drew attention to the lack among several families of suitable clothing, bedding, shoes and clothing for school children, and other necessities. He asked that the council endeavor to increase the present scale of relief in order that recipients might take care of their own needs in this respect, and offered to provide a list of several families who are in needy circumstances.

While agreeing that the statements made in the letter were quite correct, the aldermen felt that the city could hardly be called upon to bear the whole burden of such an increase, nad unless the government also contributed there would be little possibility of acceding to the request. It was eventually decided to ask the Protective Association for its list of needy families and to submit the whole matter to the government at Victoria for its consideration.

By-law No. 3421, a waterworks amendment by-law, was given its preliminary readings, and will come up for adoption at the next meeting. It allows for monthly payment of water accounts and also reduces the rates in some cases.

The fishermen's floats on the waterfront, commonly known as the city floats, do not belong to the city at all, it was brought out at the council meeting as the result of a recommendation made by the coroner's jury in connection with the drowning last week of Alfred Livingstone, a Nitinat Indian, who slipped and fell between two boats moored at the floats.

The jury recommended that a better system of lighting be installed on the floats, and Coroner C. T. Hilton passed the recommendation along to the city council. In the discussion that followed, it was brought out that the floats were under the jurisdiction of the Department of Marine, and therefore the suggestion of the coroner's jury would have to be relayed to that department. The council decided to take this course of action.

We Have Closed the "Straw Vote"

Owing to the regrettable death of Mr. W. J. Bowser, and the consequent postponement of the election in Victoria, we feel that in good taste we should not carry our "Straw Vote" further. Although many votes remain uncounted we feel that the public will appreciate the wisdom of our decision at this time.

We wish to express our thanks for the spirit of co-operation shown by the public, and on our part we have been amply repaid for the work entailed by the many expressions of congratulations extended by those who were interested enough to participate. The idea in launching the "Straw Vote" was purely to stimulate interest in the approaching election. Its postponement for several weeks means that it would have been out of place to carry the vote to a conclusion at this time.
